Downtown Antioch continues to thrive

ALEC JUNG

Staff Reporter

Downtown Antioch continues to be vibrant and grow thanks to some entrepreneurial spirit and merchants pulling together.

"It's American as apple pie," said Claude LeMere, community development director. "Downtowns and small businessmen are the backbone of this country."

LeMere smiles as he talks about a downtown with few vacancies and boasts a variety of small businesses ranging from independent clothing stores, specialty stores and antiques.

However, it was not always this way. Competition had whittled away what was once a retail mecca. Service stores had replaced retail in downtown.

He cited two businesses, which faced the pressure of Gurnee Mills, Kenosha outlets and Lakehurst Mall as helping show small retailers can compete against the corporate heavyweights.

"BJ's Fashions for Men and Jack's Four Squires survived the competition with good business practices, quality service and quality merchandise... It made it clear this is a place for small retail businesses," LeMere said.

LeMere added Antioch's downtown has changed with the times.

"Our commercial climate has changed. We are back to smaller, specialty stores," he said.

In the last two years, nine new businesses now call downtown Antioch their home. One business doubled in size.

Northeast township residents want to join Old Mill Creek

ELIZABETH EAKEN

Staff Reporter

A group known as the Newport Environmental Association Team or "NEAT" is looking for a village to call home.

President of NEAT Pat Hayden, spoke before the Old Mill Creek board on behalf of the group's members who are concerned about the encroaching annexations surrounding them. They want to make sure their area is represented in a manner they would approve of and believe Old Mill Creek may best represent their interests.

"NEAT is non-profit, its goals are to educate people, to protect the environment, to maintain life in the country, but it doesn't give us any control over zoning," Hayden lamented.

The association started in the 1980s as an environmental group working to prevent the construction of a landfill that was proposed along Hunt Club Road. At the time the group included all of Newport Township, but has since narrowed its focus to include the land bounded by Route 45 on the west, the state line on the north, Interstate 94 on the east and Route 173 on the south.

Hayden has been speaking with Ray Boller, chair of the Old Mill Creek Plan Commission, about the village's comprehensive plan and how the landowners within NEAT boundaries may fit into the plan. At the direction of Village President Paul Koppen, NEAT will continue to pursue the possibility of annexing into Old Mill Creek with the village plan commission. If the commission recommends the annexation favorably to the board it would be voted on and if approved the village would then begin its growth saga to the north of Route 173.

"We don't want to force our way in and be someone you don't want," Hayden explained to them.

Trustee Marie Lyons expressed concern that when the comprehensive plan was in development they talked of moving north slowly in terms of annexation.

Koppen said he didn't think the intention was ever to just cut off the boundaries at Route 173 and the people in Millburn needed to be protected from undesirable development.

"I think we all must continue to look ahead," he stated.

Currently the area NEAT encompasses is bordered in spots by Antioch, Wadsworth See NEAT page A2

Resident dies in sledding accident

An Antioch Township snowmobiler was killed when he struck a GMC 4-by-4 truck with a snowplow.

According to the Lake County Sheriff's Department, Craig Mors, 31, 27314, Grass Lake Road, died from injuries suffered from the collision.

Mors, according to witness statements, was driving approximately 40-50 mph. when he allegedly blew the stop sign at the intersection of Grass Lake Road and Rena Avenue and was struck by the plow of a the Jimmy driven by Jeffrey Burke of unincorporated Antioch Township at 2:05 a.m. Jan. 10.

Mors was pronounced dead at the scene by members of the Lake County Coroners office.

Mors was a soccer coach for the Lindenhurst Youth Soccer League and was a member of the Northern Illinois Conservation Club.

Preliminary indications were that Mors was drinking before the crash. Toxicology reports are being done to determine if alcohol was involved in the accident, according to Cpl. Thomas Braze of Lake County Sheriff's Department.

and Old Mill Creek. They aren't completely surrounded by the municipalities but are getting there she said. Because of this a forcible annexation could happen and that's not something they look forward to.

One option the group could take which Hayden said would most likely be ruled out at the meeting Jan. 22 is incorporating as their own village, but there are obstacles. To begin with, they would have to get dispensation from the state because although they cover the required square mileage they don't have the required population. The other obstacle was they would need permission of all three villages which surround them to undertake this effort. The only remaining option other than annexation would be to create a homeowners association but that still wouldn't protect their borders.

"That leaves annexation," Hayden told the board. "Wadsworth doesn't seem to reflect our goals and Antioch, they are further away. I went to the library and read your comprehensive plan again and liked it as well as I did the first time."

To make matters even less simple, there are only a few contiguous parcels of land between the NEAT boundaries and Old Mill Creek that would be possibilities for annexation. This is because law requires a village be contiguous to property it is annexing.

The only contiguous parcel Hayden is "quite sure of" is Church Landscaping, which owns a small parcel of land along the village border. As far as Hayden knew she said they would be in favor of annexation if they could remain using their well water for their business. Another possibility is a large piece of land encompassing over 200 acres which is owned by an absentee land owner whom they haven't been able to get in contact with.

Many things would have to be worked out if the village eventually approved annexation. They include how the updating of the comprehensive plan would be paid for and what time table they would take to annex the land.

Some additional advantages Hayden mentioned is there are only about six to seven miles of roads in their area that the village would have to maintain since most are state or county.

Merchants

Williams Brothers Emporium, Greenbench Antiques, Betty Sills Gallery, Best Pets, Coconuts Tanning Salon, The Gift Basket Co., Crafters Gallery and the Olde Tyme Deli are the newest members of the downtown. Sonshine Books doubled in size.

The merchants have come together to help make the downtown what it is today.

"Merchants meet regularly. They are concerned about everyone, not just the 50 feet in front of their store," LeMere said.

There is a lot to be said for that old-fashioned relationship between consumer and small business person.

"People like to be able to talk to the owner. People get tired of 'I don't care; I'm just an employee,'" LeMere said.

He added the downtown has a nostalgic feel that many people appreciate.

In the future look for upgrades such as facade improvements to the back of stores, parking improvements, and walking paths.

Also high on the list is the upgrading of dormant watershed which is envisioned to be a community park with skating ponds and a bandshell.

Accident

Burke was not ticketed for the accident. He is unlikely to be ticketed, according to Braze.

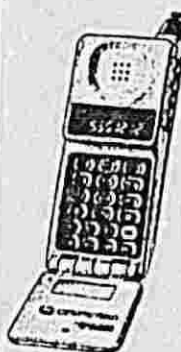

Braze mentioned it appears Burke was driving in his lane of traffic when the accident occurred.

The accident investigation is ongoing.

Mors is survived by his wife, Judy, two sons, Scott and Steven and his parents, Tom and Judith Mors.

Only incumbents file early for village race

ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

Antioch may not have a race for village offices after all.

Only the Citizens for Better Government slate filed during the early deadline period. The slate is the current mayor and incumbent trustees seeking their second term in office.

Mayor Marilyn Shineflug heads the ticket and she is joined by Trustees Ron Cunningham, Dorothy Larson and Marvin Oldenburger.

Shineflug won election in 1993 by defeating Larry Hanson. She was a trustee before becoming mayor.

During her administration, the village has added businesses, launched a Metra train station, started many special events including Halloween Howl, and signed boundary agreements with Lake Villa and Lindenhurst.

Cunningham is the chairman of the Public Safety Committee, Larson is chairwoman of Parks and Recreation Committee and Oldenburger chairs the Planning and Zoning Committee.

Someone had picked up an independent mayoral petition from Village Clerk Candi Rowe stating it was for someone else.

However, among the Antioch residents asked, no one knew who this candidate might be, or have been asked to sign an independent candidate petition.

The filing deadline is Jan. 21. The first day for candidate petitions to be turned in was Jan. 13.

Wisdom Hall bustling with activity

ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

Taking a closer look at the new Wisdom Hall in Antioch Community High School might be a glimpse at what education will be like in the future.

A former study hall has been transformed into a multi-purpose area which offers everything from individualized help with homework to Internet access to a quiet study room. This is the first semester for this hybrid educational approach.

"We have students who need a lot of help; we have students who are advanced," said Coordinator Ann Kakacek.

The space was designed to include technology, provide individual assistance to struggling students, advanced work for academic achievers, a lecture room for classes, a quiet room for studying and a private area for one-on-one instruction.

Kakacek said the most dramatic results have come from students who have a history of being disinterested in academics.

"These students didn't even want to be here. You see them now and their attitude has changed," Kakacek said.

Wisdom Hall offers up-to-date technology with Macintosh computers, and information resources. Students have really taken to using the Internet for research, said Kakacek.

There also is a credit course held in Wisdom Hall which teaches study habits and has work assigned with it.

"I found out I need more open spaces," said student Jason Nahas. "I have more room to move around and it's quieter."

"They really go out of their way to help you," said Tim Taylor. "It has more space and it's relatively quiet."

College prep courses are also being taught in the area.

There are three teachers in the room at all times and usually at least one parent volunteer.

The name Wisdom Hall was picked by students as their choice after a naming contest.

"It's easier for me to get my work done," said Margie Gonzalez.

Kakacek said student suggestions will be incorporated for next semester.

ACHS approves second building loan

ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

Antioch Community High School board authorized borrowing the rest of the money needed for school expansion and remodeling.

The board approved having staff find a bonding agent for the $2.7 million in certificate of participation loans. The board had already approved getting $4.4 million in December. All of this money will come from existing tax funds and a referendum won't be needed.

"All we have is concept. We will be eliminating the old building, putting in an addition," said Superintendent Dennis Hockney.

There are no architectural plans or sketches completed at this time.

The board also agreed to hire Seater Construction in Racine to be the contractor for the project. The company will work with the architect to ensure the plans are done in a cost-effective manner, according to Hockney.

The board has time on its side. There isn't a need to develop the plans because attendance isn't growing as fast as it had earlier been projected.

"We have the luxury of time. We can take our time and plan so it is done correctly," Hockney said.

The board will be getting input from teachers to help them determine what is needed five years down the line.

Hockney said the board will be seeking public input from Antioch, Lake Villa and Lindenhurst communities once there are some drawings and more information could be presented.

Early filings reveal township races

ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

Antioch Township will have at least two contests for positions based on early election filings.

As expected, Township Trustee Timothy Osmond and activist Carole Jonites have petitioned for the supervisor post. Both candidates had made public statements declaring their candidacy.

Osmond is a two-term trustee. He owns Osmond Insurance Agency and is president of the Antioch Rescue Squad.

Jonites is president and founding member of United Homeowners Association of Unincorporated Antioch (UHA UA). She also is president of Felter's subdivision association.

Supervisor Jim Fields has decided to retire and not seek re-election.

There is a two-way race for assessor. Heather Kufalk-Marotta, deputy assessor, is opposed by political newcomer Michael Mueller.

Kufalk-Marotta has been employed by the township for 16 years. She has been the deputy assessor for 11 years.

Assessor Cliff Houghton will not seek re-election. The same goes for Clerk Richard Harlan.

Longtime township employee Kathleen Smith has filed a petition for clerk.

All four trustees slots are up for election. So far, incumbent Claudette Skvarce is seeking a second term and newcomer Ardeen Harris are officially in the race.

No one has filed for highway commissioner, however, Highway Commissioner Mark Ring has announced he will seek re-election.

Martini sends warning to stay off ice

ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

Antioch County Board Member Judy Martini is pleading with people to stay off the ice in the wake of a rash of snowmobile accidents.

"Some may think that since it is cold out the ice will support them, but this just isn't so," Martini said. "I am very concerned about the safety of those using our waterways this season and would like to warn them to be careful, and please stay off the lakes. There are numerous pockets of open water on the lakes, yet, and the added snow concealed many open areas."

Martini stresses the cold weather makes falling into the ice an even more dangerous proposition.

"The county Sheriff's Department and rescue teams do a magnificent job and can come out to save someone in a very short period of time after it is reported. But I am very concerned that with the weather being this cold it is extremely dangerous if someone goes in. Hypothermia can set in in a very short time and it is very dangerous to be traveling alone."

Chain accidents include the death of Craig Mors, 32, of Antioch Township. Mors was killed when his snowmobile struck a snowplow near Grass Lake Road.

Last week, rescuers were called out to save eight snowmobilers who were pulled out of Pistakee Lake, two came from Fox Lake and one from the upper Fox River.

On Dec. 26, two snowmobilers fell into the slushy waters of Lake Marie.

Martini encouraged people to use Lake County Forest Preserve Trails which have 11.5 miles of new trails. The closest preserve, Grant Woods, between Monaville Road and Rte. 59, has more than seven miles of trail along the 964-acre preserve.

The trails wind around some beautiful wooded areas and it is extremely beautiful this time of year. . . . It is much safer than going out on the lakes and just as much fun," Martini said.

For more information about the Forest Preserve trail system call 367-6640.

Service provides bridge to university

ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

The Cooperative Extension Service is not the first button on most people's redial.

However, James Betustak, unit leader, described how the service, which is an extension of the University of Illinois, disseminates information in a practical and usable form.

"It's a valuable resource which brings information to you," Betustak told Antioch Rotary members.

Betustak stressed the extension service has many resources available, including programs and workshops which distribute information to residents.

As an example, the extension administers the 4-H program. Currently, 9,600 students throughout Lake County, participate in this educational program.

In 4-H, youth can choose from more than 185 topics ranging from computers to sewing, giving them practical tips.

Another popular outreach is horticulture with the Master Gardener program. The service educates volunteers with 60 hours of curriculum which they then give back to the community by answering any gardening related topic.

Last year alone, Master Gardeners answered 4,000 questions relating to gardening or landscape.

The program derives its roots from the University land grant system in 1862. That program set aside a college in each state devoted to research. University of Illinois is the research university in this state.

The extension program was started in 1914 through Smith-Weber Act.

The service also provides workshops such as one that helps people have an appreciation for what it is like to be elderly and one that teaches incoming elected officials about governing.

He also mentioned how the program is working with Antioch school and community officials to find a community-wide solution to the impending space crunch.

Also, the extension has satellite capability and can downlink programs from other states. As an example, 35 people are receiving information from the Alabama extension demonstrating how small businesses can be more competitive.

Betustak welcomes people to come into the office in Grayslake. The office has many free materials available. For more information call 223-8627.

Park forming senior exercise program

ALEC JUNG
Staff Reporter

For one senior, now is the best time to keep exercising.

Joy Steward, of Lindenhurst, is trying to organize a senior light aerobic class. Steward wants people 55 and older to be in better health and condition. However, this is not the fast-paced aerobics offered elsewhere.

"There is nothing out there that is geared for our age group," Steward said.

In that vein, she is working with the Lindenhurst Park District to form the class in the afternoon. An informational meeting is planned for Jan. 22 at 2 p.m. in the community center, 220 E. Grass Lake Road.

"There are classes in morning or in the evening when you're too tired. There is nothing available during the afternoon hours."

"Everything is done at a fast pace. We would slow it down a pace," Steward said.

She reminds people one study indicated not exercising is the equivalent of smoking a pack of cigarettes a day.

The informational meeting will also include information regarding "Senior Saturdays" a social gathering of seniors, which begins Feb. 8. There will be coffee available.

Interested people should call 356-6011 to register.

For additional information call Steward at 356-7676.

Daddy daughter date night 1997

Dads, it's time to get all dressed up for the most special date of the year. The Sixth Annual Daddy Daughter Date Night will be held on Feb. 15, at the Antioch Community High School from 7 to 9 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at the Parks and Recreation Office or at Village Hall for $10 per couple ($3 each additional daughter; $12 per couple at the door.) The evening will consist of dancing to Chicago's Best DJ, prizes, sundae bar, a keepsake photo, and a carnation for each daughter. Moms why sit at home alone that evening. The Parks and Recreation Dept. is actively seeking volunteers to help out in a variety of areas that day; decorating, serving refreshments, pinning corsages, assembling photographs, etc. For more information on this event, call 395-2160.

Beans to the whole issue of trendy little toys

Well folks, I haven't had much to say about the latest trend that has possessed children and parents alike, but now comes my point on this whole Beanie Baby issue.

In recent months, I was practically ostracized by many in our circle because my children did not own a single Beanie Baby—I have failed as a mother.

Now, although we don't possess a substantial amount of that green paper stuff known as money, our kids are certainly well fed, well cared for and well loved. They lack for nothing they need to exist in life such as food, clothing shelter and their own TV and VCR. Our house is not fancy by any means but the walls do manage to keep out the wind and the roof usually doesn't leak.

I am not one to throw bouquets at myself, but I gave up a promising career in advertising to spend my day's catering to these little urchins. I chauffeur them to three different schools, brownie meetings, piano lessons, choir practice and every birthday party, field trip and sleep over that comes up. My kids have never had to make a bed, wash a dish or dust a piece of furniture. We eat out at least twice a week and although we don't do Happy Meals, we certainly seek out the fast food establishments with the biggest, noisiest indoor play areas in Lake County. We have attended every Disney On Ice show produced, plays, movies and even professional sporting events.

Every year we take a vacation which requires getting on a plane, we spend countless weekends at hotels with indoor pools, and it wouldn't be a summer if not for a trip to the Wisconsin Dells. We all know what torture those trips can be. At the hands of my children I have had my entire face painted with make-up, my fingernails polished all the way up to my knuckles and my hair ratted so badly that the local beautician had no choice but to cut the snarls out. I have played countless games of Candy Land, Chutes and Ladders, Trouble and Sorry. I have spent years rocking, singing, reading, and helping with homework, for my children's sake. I would give my left arm, a kidney or my ear to any of those little ones living under my roof, but I absolutely refuse to succumb to the latest fad, trend or obsession.

Well, thanks to several aunts, uncles, cousins, grandparents and even total strangers, my children now possess 18 of those cuddly little bean-filled critters known to the population as Beanie Babies. Total strangers would approach me at the mall and hand me a small wrapped parcel containing a Baby as if they knew I was a neglective mother.

Now my children can carry them to school in their backpacks, lunch boxes, and coat pockets and sit with all their little materialist friends trying to out do each other with numbers they have and the specific ditties they possess. Or if the mood strikes them, they could just rappel the buggers across a frozen playground like a lethal weapon and take out of few of their fellow classmates. Now I know by conducting an unofficial survey of just a few of my kids friends, 18 is pittance compared to the numbers of these little creatures some kids possess.

Oh sure, they are cute and cuddly and they do make relatively inexpensive birthday gifts, but at $5 a pop—well that's a lot of pop if you collect all 99 of them. Some think of it as depriving my children, I look at it as a building character and trying to instill some "be your own person" traits in a "let's follow the crowd" world. I hear now they even have "retired" Beanie Babies—I personally think they should retire the entire collection—like the Tickle Me Elmo frenzy didn't cause enough chaos over the holidays. So now my kids own 18 of those little critters, lucky them.

After they opened the prize possession they piled them up under the Christmas tree where they sat, unloved and untouched until it was time to take the tree down. Then we ever so gently moved the "I just gotta have" neglected latest trend upstairs into their bedrooms where they have sat on a shelf for the past three weeks, once again unloved and untouched. But I suppose now they can go to school and say to all their little friends: "I have Inky, Derby, Sparky, Speedy—" whoopee. I myself, oh clever one that I am, have come up with the perfect solution to the whole obsession: Beanie Babies meet Snack-Time Cabbage Patch Kid.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle"—don't forget to call 395-6364.

Victory announces big plans for northern county

MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Correspondent

A medical and health care facility will anchor a city within a city within the next two years provided all of the plans of Victory Memorial Hospital become reality.

The largest single project in the history of Victory Health Services, a $30 million senior residential community, was announced, Jan. 13, by John Clennon, chairman of the board.

The planned Village at Victory Lakes, combined with the existing Victory Lakes skilled nursing facility, will provide older adults a full range of care.

In a joint announcement, plans for a $10 million ambulatory care facility were revealed.

Victory recently received approval from the State of Illinois for the project. Groundbreaking for both portions is scheduled for this spring with completion sometime in 1998.

"The initial project plus the addition of the ambulatory facility brings a valued asset to the entire Lake County area within the community of Lindenhurst," said Lindenhurst Mayor Paul Baumunk, following the village board's being updated by Victory representatives at its January 13 meeting.

Baumunk continued. "We're very encouraged with the relationship which has developed between Victory Health Care, Lake Villa Township Library and Gridley property representatives."

As a result of the combined efforts of the three factions, a new entrance will be constructed for the Library, the intersection of Deep Lake Road and Rte. 132 will be "squared off" and the community of Lindenhurst, as well as the entire northwestern section of Lake County will receive a state-of-the-art retirement community along with a badly needed emergency surgical medical facility.

Both new facilities will be on adjacent property to the existing Victory Lakes 120-bed skilled nursing facility on Grand Ave., just east of the Library on Lindenhurst's west side.

The complete project is expected to offer older adults a full range of care, including independent housing, assisted living and skilled nursing care options.

The 200-unit community will include 40 independent duplex cottages and 60 assisted-living suites offering a variety of floor plans, along with 100 apartments including studio, one and two bedroom units; and a Village Center featuring a beauty parlor, grocery store, deli, ice cream shop, fitness center and rooms for overnight guests.

The facility is looked at as providing "a unique concept in Lake County senior housing," according to Tim Harrington, president and Chief Executive Officer of Victory Health Services.

Residents are expected to be able to "maintain their independence" whether they are temporarily ill or require long-term care, explained Harrington.

A general public-oriented commercial section is eventually planned for a 6-acre parcel on the Grand Ave. frontage.

The second phase of the project, the 2-story ambulatory unit, will include four full surgical suites.

The diagnostic portion of the facility will offer pre-surgical and general testing procedures for area residents.

X-rays, CT-scans, ultrasounds and mammograms will be able to be performed. Blood tests and urinalysis will be among the full range of laboratory testing offered.

A helipad is planned which will enable transport to area hospitals if needed. An MRI-port will also be available.

Victory representatives also revealed plans to apply to the State of Illinois for certification for a 72-hour recovery center and birthing center on a "test program" status. St. Therese Hospital recently dropped its plans for such a test program, creating a certification for such a facility in Lake County being possibly available.

Let it Snow!

Couple and dogs frolic all winter with new hobby

Although Joan Healey was always an outdoors person, she never looked forward to winter. "The short days and darkness really got me down," she said. Now she can't wait for winter — the cold, the snow — lots of snow. What caused this change? Joan and Hugh Gollogly go dog sledding.

The story begins when Joan and Hugh were bike riding not far from their home in Lincolnshire, and they decided to make a visit to Orphans of the Storm. This wasn't unusual. Many times before, when out in their car, they would stop by to "say hello to the animals." But this visit was different. A Malamute mix found a new home.

Marlene Brown
Correspondent

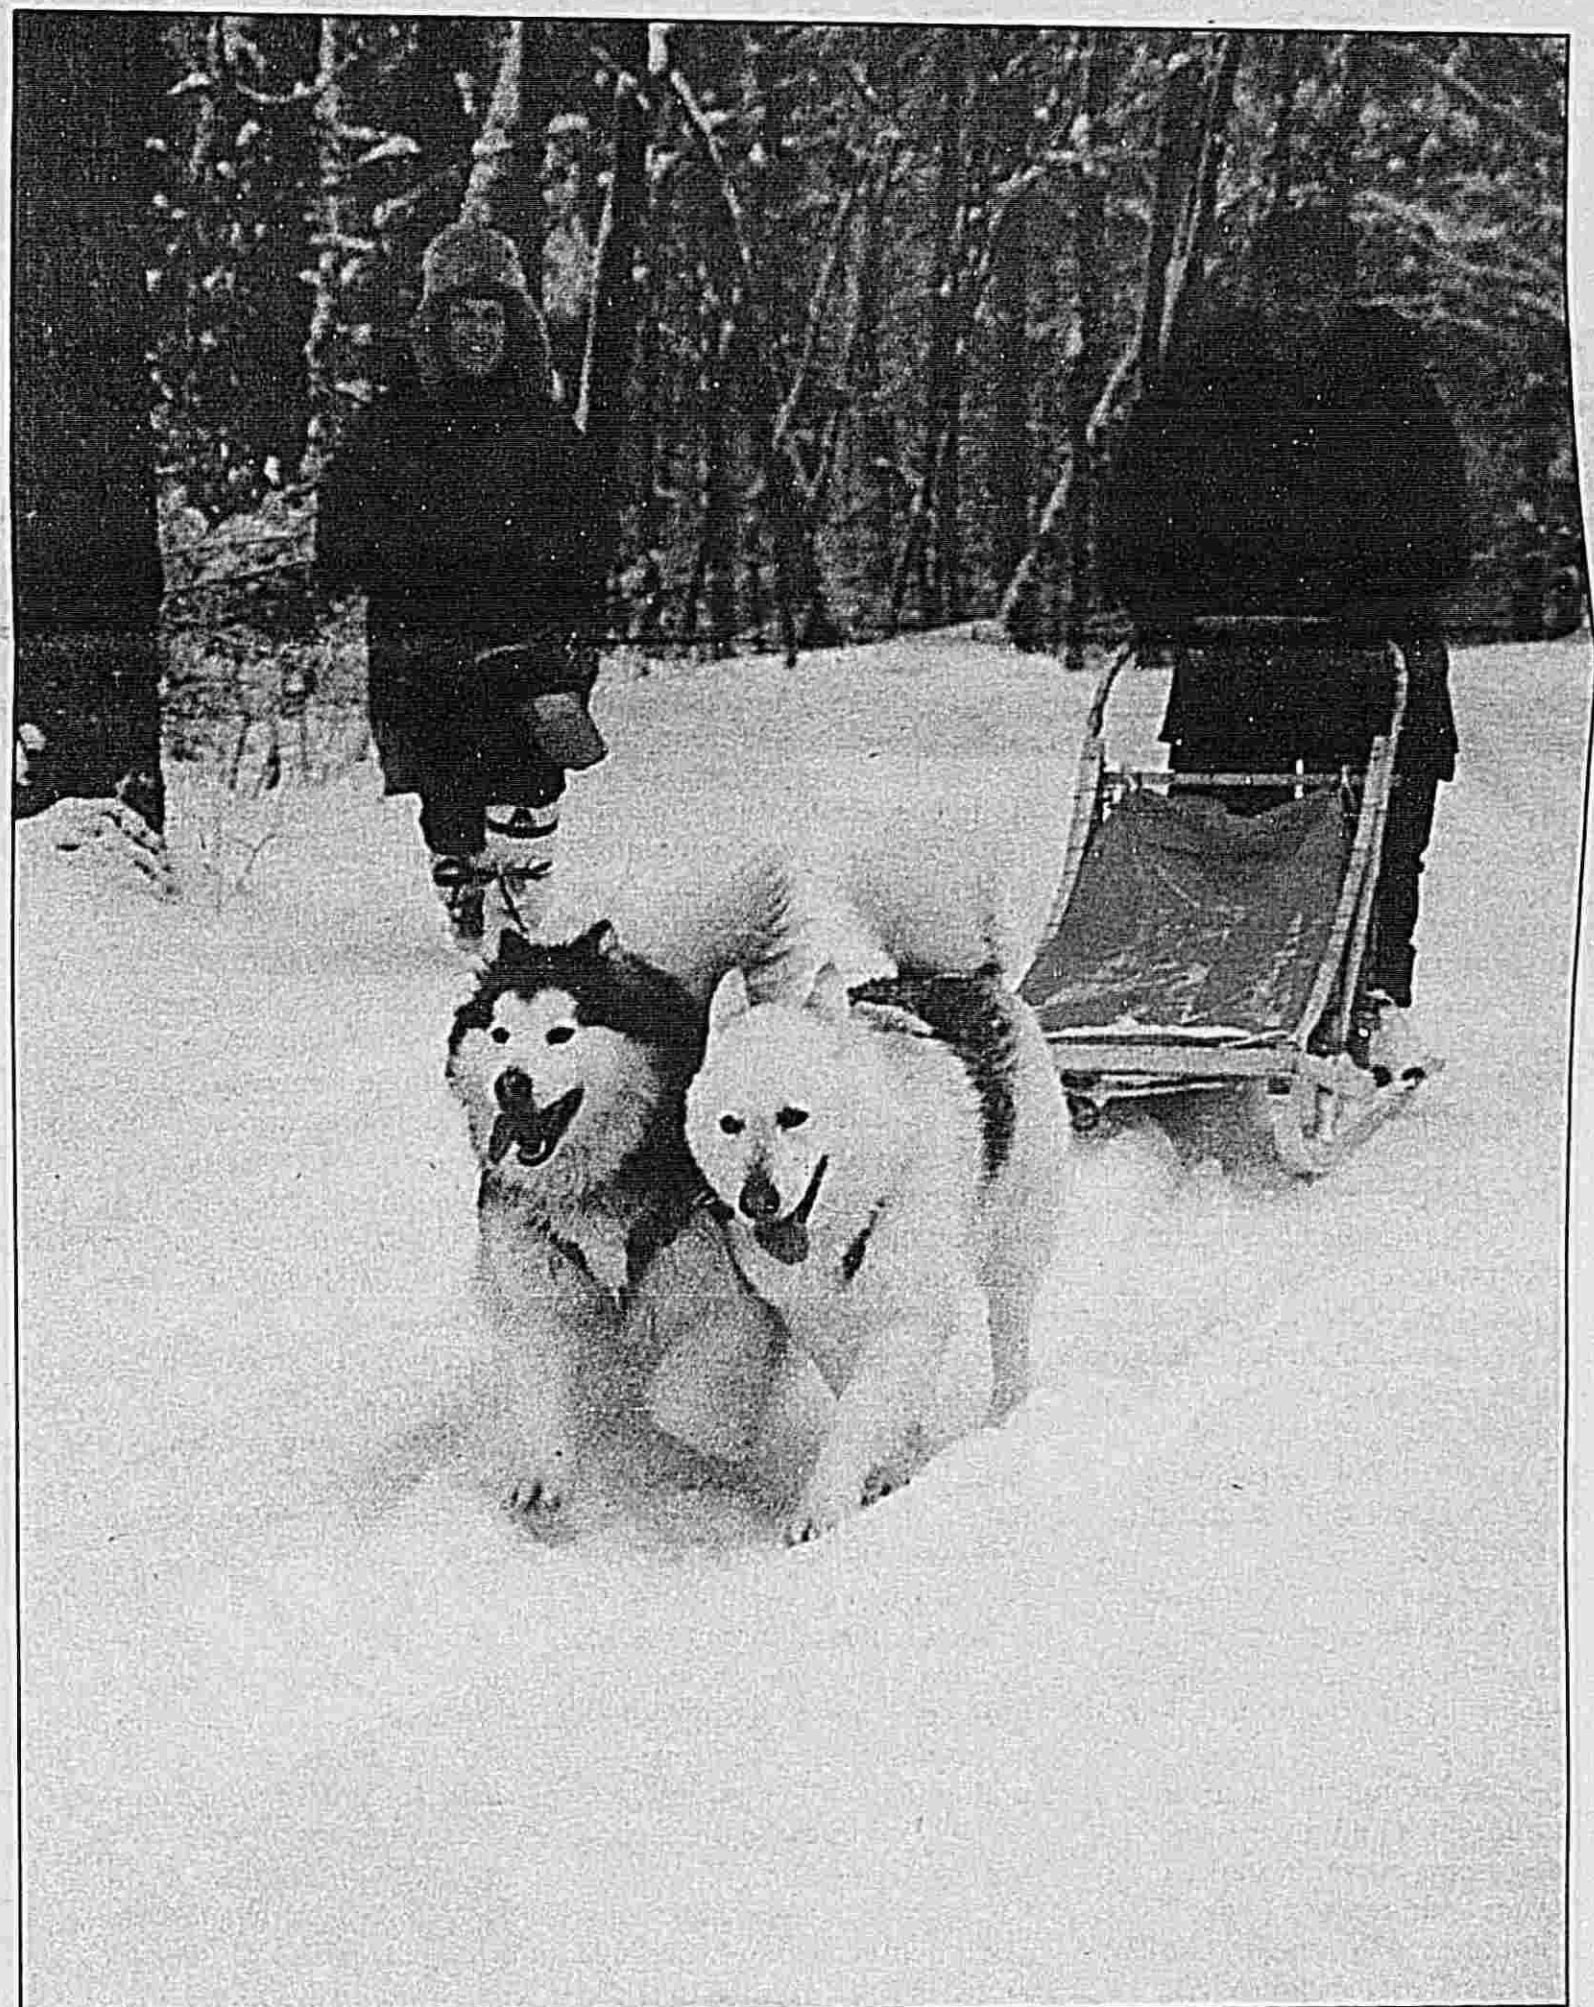

"Cody adopted us," Joan said, smiling. They knew their new dog loved the outdoors. What they didn't know was how much Malamutes love pulling things, and how strong they are. The dogs weigh close to 100 pounds and pull with their strong chests. They get excited just seeing the harnesses or any gear.

The first winter, Cody was fitted with his harness, and went Skijoring with Joan and Hugh. This sport is similar to cross country skiing, but the skier has a belt around his/her waist that is attached to the dog's harness. "The trees were going by very fast," Joan mused. It was time to look into dog-sledding.

They found a dog sled, displayed on a farm, when coming back from a camping and canoeing trip to Canada. Making dog sleds is a highly specialized craft, many times being passed down from generation to generation. This was their first purchase, but they now own three sleds.

Thinking that to pull a dog sled they would need a team, Hugh called an organization called Malamute Rescue to find another dog. Cheyenne became part of the family soon after that call.

With the two dogs in place, Hugh and Joan took their first "run" on a trail in the Cook County Forest Preserves. The sled went so fast that when they were able to catch their breath, they realized the awesome strength of these far northern breeds. The next step was to purchase another sled, so each dog could pull one.

Joan and Hugh Gollogly take Cody and Cheyenne for a run on their property in Lincolnshire. They also train in the Cook County Forest Preserves, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan.—Photos by Linda Chapman

By this time Joan and Hugh found other people in the area who shared their interests. "There are about 30 to 40 that we know," Hugh said, "but there could be more." There are seminars, such as those sponsored by the REI, (Recreational Equipment Inc.), and there are teachers who specialize in training both the dogs and the owners.

Where do they do their sledding? Besides the Forest Preserves in Cook County, they go to Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Each "run" is about 2 to 5 miles.

They also can run the dogs on their own spacious property. In the summer, or when there isn't enough snow, they use a training cart that is built with a platform and three wheels. The dogs also go on summer camping trips and can haul equipment and even participate in backpacking and climbing. When it gets too warm, they luxuriate in a child's swimming pool.

Joan said the maintenance costs are minimal. See DOGS page B5

Children's concert

The Family Circle of Youth and Family Counseling presents their fifth annual Jim Gill Children's Concert at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 25, at the First Presbyterian Church, 219 W. Maple St., Libertyville. Cost is $8 per family.

The incredible Jim Gill show features Gill's energetic one-man show performed in an original style that motivates children to join in the performance.

Gill's work has been called "music and drama play" because his imaginative stories, songs and silly things encourage children to play along and share in the applause.

The performance features songs from both of his award winning recordings for young children, "Jim Gill Sings the Sneezing Song...and Other Contagious Tunes" and "Jim Gill Makes is Noisy in Boise, Idaho."

Children all across the country have jumped, danced, sneezed, rhymed, sang and laughed while playing along with Gill. The whole family will enjoy this unique concert filled with Jim Gill's play creations.

Immediately preceding the concert at 9:30 a.m. Family Circle will sponsor a special free drop-in (play time) group at the church for families. The Family Circle offers drop-in on Thursday mornings for parents and their children newborn to age 4, discussion groups, STEP course and speaker programs on a range of topics dealing with early childhood and parenting issues.

This concert is being underwritten by McDonald's of Libertyville, Vernon Hills and Mundelein; proceeds from the concert will benefit the Family Circle.

The Family Circle is a non-for-profit, non-sectarian organization dedicated to providing parent education and support for families with young children, and is sponsored by Youth and Family Counseling, which has served Lake County since 1962.

A parent's concern about the internet

Dear Dr. Singer,

I am a mother of a Junior High child. My son is 12 and has friends who have computers in their homes. More specifically, they have access to the Internet and I have heard that there is an awful lot of pornographic material available on it. Our home doesn't have a computer so I am completely Internet ignorant.

I don't know if my child is actually seeing this material, but not being sure also scares me.

I cannot prevent my child from seeing all of his friends and I don't know which friends have this and which don't. I am sure that some do have the Internet, because I've heard him talk about it. Does this material on the Internet go very far and if so, how can I prevent damage from happening to my child? Signed, Desperately clinging to an older world!

Dear Desperately,

This is a topic I hear quite a lot about these days! Pornography on the Internet exists, or so I've heard, and some of it can be pretty raunchy! First, let me point out that the Internet is not the first place that kids have had access to nudity and sexual suggestion.

I remember being in third grade and hearing kids talk about the National Geographic Magazine and the nude pictures in it.

I also remember being in Junior High and my friends describing how they had secretly taken their parent's book, "The Other Side of Midnight," which was also fairly graphic. Other kids took parents magazines. There has always been the availability of material that carried nudity or sexual suggestion.

Also, there has always been the curiosity in kids that there is today. One way or another, kids have been able to get their hands on this type of material if they wanted to. The difference on the Internet may be in the content of the sexual suggestion. In some cases it may be more deviant.

I believe that there are things you can do to limit access to this material on the Internet but I will say that if you have good values in your home and have an open line of communication about topics like this, the likelihood of this material causing any

Keep lines of communication open so that you can share notes about what the kids are doing together. They may not be doing anything problematic, but if you are communicating with other parents, the chances of identifying problems becomes much greater.

I'm sure that these other parents wouldn't be thrilled if their kids were watching anything pornographic either and will probably appreciate your concern. I wouldn't recommend accusing anybody of anything. It can sound like an accusation if not worded correctly when you approach other parents about their children. Communicate your concern and support.

Lastly, if you hear your child talking about questionable material, make sure to talk about it with the child.

Again, this is an area that is not isolated to the Internet. As I said before, kids will always be able to find questionable material. Keep lines of communication open, limit access as much as possible and if you see any seriously deviant behavior, get professional help quickly. I hope this helps.

Thanks to all my writers!! Keep on writing!

permanent opinion or damage would be fairly small. It might cause more curiosity and question, but I highly doubt it would cause damage to a child from a home with good values. If your family has good values, the material in question would most likely not fit with your child's view of the world in general, and therefore, be more of a strange thing and not become a part of his or her permanent philosophy.

To limit access to this material, the first thing I would suggest is that you find out which online service these other kids have. You can ask in an innocent way. Sound like you're interested in the service rather than checking up on them.

I may be wrong, but I believe that the major online services have a "restricted" option that prevents your computer from bringing up certain material.

Again, don't quote me on that because I might be wrong, but it's worth checking into and communicating about this option to the other parents.

This brings me to the second thing you could do. Communicate often with the other parents without your kids knowing that you're doing this.

The No Hassle
All-Inclusive Honeymoon

by JIM WARNKEN, PRESIDENT
NORTH STAR TRAVEL, INC.

All-inclusive resorts are fast becoming a popular vacation choice, since they provide a truly carefree atmosphere.

Even more than the annual vacationer, though, these "one price covers all" properties are attracting many honeymoon couples, and for good reason. At what time in a couple's life is it more important to have a stress-free vacation than on their honeymoon?

At an all-inclusive, there is no need to be concerned about how much to tip the guy who brings your bags to your room. You'll never suffer "sticker shock" from the menu prices at resort restaurants. No need to think twice about what your bar bill will be if you order that fancy rum drink with the umbrella in it. - No $30 per hour costs for wind-surfing or scuba diving lessons. There's also no charge for the great entertainment you'll be treated to every night.

All this, and much more is included in the one up-front price you pay for an all-inclusive resort vacation.

The most popular of the all-inclusives, and one who deals exclusively with couples, is Sandals Resorts.

Sandals offers resorts on the Island of Jamaica, one on Antigua, two on St. Lucia, another on Barbados, and their newest in the Bahamas. All include gourmet dining at a choice of restaurants, drinks, anytime snacks, scuba diving, sailing, wind-surfing, entertainment, tips, taxes and a whole lot more. Some now even include golf.

Having visited most of the Sandals properties, my personal favorite is Sandals in Negril on the Island of Jamaica and Sandals Dunn's River Falls, also on Jamaica, a close second.

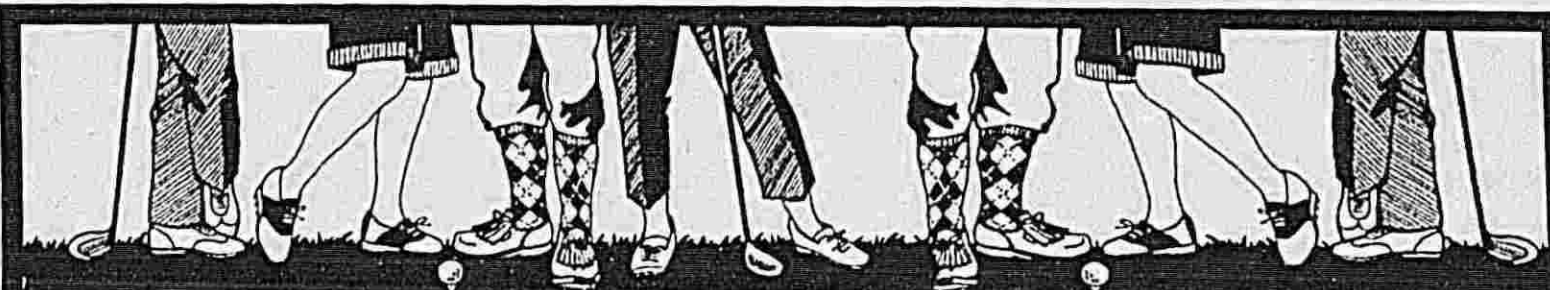

Stay away from "Sandals Inn" located in Montego Bay, since it does not have a private beach. Also, while the larger "Sandals Montego Bay" does have a great beach, it's right next to the airport, so you might want to avoid it, too, unless you grew up around O'Hare as did I, and the sound of jets is second nature.

Ciboney, San Souci and Swept-A-Way, also on Jamaica, Bolongo Beach in St. Thomas, (wait a few months on this one due to hurricane damage), and the Harmony Club of Bermuda are other good choices for all-inclusive honeymoons.

Dogs

The sleds stay in good shape, and of course there are no fuel or licensing costs. Feeding the dogs would be expected anyway, so they can truly have a good time at nominal costs.

Unfortunately, Healey and Gollogly can't "sled" in the bounteous Lake County Forest Preserves because there is an ordinance prohibiting this activity.

"The dogs are always harnessed, and we stay on trails," Hugh added, a sad tone in his voice. "It's disappointing to not be able to enjoy our own County's preserves, when so many of the surrounding counties have no restrictions." Joan and Hugh would like to have the County Board take another look into this ordinance, and at least ask some questions that could lead the way to lifting the prohibition.

And what about that word we hear in all of the movies with dog sleds? Mush? "No one uses that around here. The sport is called mushing, and the people doing it are mushers," said Hugh. Joan added that they are more likely to just make sounds of excitement and encouragement.

There are at least two people and two dogs who are thrilled with this winter's snow and cold. Fun is spelled d-o-g-s-l-e-d-d-i-n-g.

—Movie Pick— Woody sees not easy to be sleazy

Having been in the print business in the 1970s when Larry Flynt and his pornographic magazine "Hustler" grabbed many a headline, I was not anxious to see a biography of one of the sleaziest men in the history of America's publication world.

When I saw that "Cheers" Woody Harrelson was playing the part of Flynt, I expected a recall of his conscienceless killer in "Natural Born Killers." Not so.

Oliver Stone has done it again in producing "The People Vs. Larry Flynt," a movie about a very controversial subject that turns out to be enlightening, well made, even award caliber.

Harrelson's Flynt is honestly base and scuzzy, from the time he runs a striptease joint so he can sleep with all of his employees, to the outlandish, crusading wheelchair-bound maverick, defending freedom of the printed word as guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Despite Harrelson's almost perfect portrayal of a man driven crazy by his fight for the right to publish a magazine that honestly "goes too far," an unlikely actress, Courtney Love, steals the show as the love of his life Althea, whom he meets as a 17-year-old stripper.

Complete soulmates, they were married for 11 years until an AIDS related disease killed her in 1987. Sleazy or not, this is a real love story.

The script follows Flynt's struggle to be able to sell his form of pornography whether or not the Moral Majority, etc. approves.

The movie follows Flynt who, after spending time in prison and being crippled by a shot from an unknown assailant, which ironically paralyzes him, turns into a born again Christian.

Flynt's appearance in court garbed in Army gear and an American flag for a diaper asks the question which is more obscene, war or unabridged sex.

During the days when "Playboy Magazine" was an on-the-stand best seller and Hugh Hefner and his Playboy Clubs blossomed all over the world without one-tenth the opposition Flynt received, the movie points out America's double standards.

Why was "Playboy" acceptable because some "good articles" surrounded its lewd pics, when "Hustler" merely got down to the business at hand. "Playboy" pushed sex after stripping off the expensive clothes, while "Hustler" started out with stark unadorned nakedness.

Flynt's fight to be allowed to go too far is tantamount to the Nazis' fight to be allowed to march through the primarily Jewish town of Skokie. The fact that in America we have the freedom to say or do anything we want. If it is illegal we go to jail, if it is objectionable, we should still have the right to do it. The secret is nobody has to watch us.

True, Flynt brought unadorned hard core pornography into the main stream - and made millions doing it. His long legal fight unabashedly let all would-be readers know what they were getting. We give this "R" rated, for open minds only, flick 4.5 stars out of five for making an unpalatable subject interesting and even funny, just as much of real life is. —by GLORIA DAVIS

Don't call me, I'll call you —Maybe

It's funny. "Santa" has a way of bringing you the occasional gift that you didn't even know you wanted. Such as a cellular phone. In fact, even after I opened up the box from "Santa" (also known as my husband) and found the phone, I still didn't know I wanted it.

Which is why "Santa" had to explain it to me.

"Isn't this great? You finally have your own portable phone," he said to me, looking like a kid who just drew his Mom a beautiful picture.

"I see that. How...nice. When exactly did I mention I needed one?"

"Oh, I don't know, we talked about it."

"We did? Oh, yes, now I remember—you told me I should have one, and I said I didn't want another monthly bill."

"Don't worry about the money, it was a really good deal."

"How good a deal was it?"

"The phone was free, except for a $25 charity donation, and then it's just $25 a month."

"So, you mean, even if I don't make one phone call, it's $25 a month?"

"Yes, but it's worth it. And if you decide you don't want it, you can cancel the contract after two years."

"TWO YEARS? YOU SIGNED A CONTRACT FOR TWO YEARS?" I said, looking like the Mom who just discovered the

"Listen—you'll thank me some day when your car breaks down."

Hopefully, he's not going to

tamper with my brakes just to prove his point. And he is right. Sort of. If, by some chance, my car breaks down in the remote parking lot at Gurnee Mills, I will be very grateful to have a phone to call someone for help. Still, I can't help feeling reluctant about becoming a "cellular user."

No longer will I be able to sit in my car and make sarcastic comments about "yuppie" drivers who weave all over the road as they attempt to dial their cellular phone. Why, just the other day, I became a "weaver" myself when I was driving home from Antioch and suddenly my cellular phone rang. The ringing startled me and, what's worse, I had no idea how to answer it. I found my driving abilities severely impaired while I tried to flip the phone open and attempted to push the right button to receive the call. After nearly running off the road, I ended up disconnecting the phone. So much for incoming calls.

And I won't be able to make fun of those uppity types anymore, the ones who try to impress us by whipping out their cellular phone to make calls while in a crowd. Despite my disdain for such public displays, there's something about having a portable phone that almost guarantees you will want to use it to impress others. A few weeks ago, I was in the dentist's chair having my teeth cleaned, and the phone was in my pocket. I can't tell you how tempted I was to stop the hygienist in mid-scrap and say, "Excuse me—I have to make a call."

I did manage to control myself, though—instead, when I got home I called my husband from the driveway and told him I was just leaving the dentist's office. The look on his face when I walked in the house 30 seconds later was almost worth $25 a month. Almost.

I guess this phone thing could be fun, although I miss being "out of reach" in my car. Other than the bathroom, it was my only place of real solitude. So I've decided the trick is not to give anyone your cellular phone number. Especially your kids.

Why? Because the first time I get a phone call in the car, and the person on the other end begins by saying, "What's for dinner?" that phone is history.

Editor's note: Donna Abear can also be heard as a guest humorist on WXLC 102.3 FM's morning show at 7:10 a.m. on alternate Mondays.

Bake traditional French apple pie

Nancy Carpentier Brown — Antioch

Pie crust

2/3 cups butter

1 2/3 cups flour

Mix together till crumbly. Split into two equal portions.

Portion one—the bottom crust—

Add about 2 to 3 Tbls. cold water, just until it balls together.

Roll out in a circle on a floured pastry cloth until it measures one inch larger than your pie plate.

Form it into your pie plate, trim the edge, and flute edge with a fork.

Portion two—the top crust

A French Apple pie has a crumbly, sweet topping, which is a little different from the traditional flat top pie crust.

In a bowl, combine the crumbly mixture left over from the start of your pie crust with 1/2 cup of sugar and 1 tsp. of cinnamon. Mix together with a fork with 1 tsp. of cold water, and set aside.

French apple pie

8 to 10 baking apples, Macintosh work well

1 cup sugar

1 tsp. cinnamon

3 Tbls. butter

1/2 cup cheddar cheese

Put 1 Tbl. of butter, divided into three portions on the bottom of the crust. In a small bowl, mix the sugar and cinnamon together. Peel the apples, then grate them, 2 or 3 at a time. Place them in the pie tin, and sprinkle with sugar after each addition. In the middle, place another tablespoon of butter, again divided into three portions. At the top, place the final tablespoon of butter, again divided. If you have any sugar left, sprinkle it all around the edges. Then sprinkle the shredded cheese, and finally, put the crumbly topping on.

Bake at 350 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes. Place foil over the top to prevent over-browning. Place on a cookie sheet to prevent spilling in your oven.

Delicious alone, or top with ice cream.

Nancy Carpentier Brown's grandmother was born in Turtle Lake, Wis. on July 4, 1900. She was born of French Canadian immigrants, and the family spoke French. When Nancy was a little girl her grandmother taught her how to cook some of her families' recipes. Her apple pie is the favorite. Enjoy!

Horoscope

Aries - March 21/April 20
 Think before you act, especially early in the week. If your love life seems to be going nowhere, it's probably time to make a change. Take some time for self-reflection. Feeling out of shape lately? Well, maybe it's time to get off the couch and head for the gym!

Taurus - April 21/May 21
 A friend's change of heart could disrupt your weekly schedule. You may find yourself doing something you hadn't planned on. A look at someone's lifestyle makes you yearn to be more spontaneous. Face it, Taurus - nobody's more set in his or her ways than you! Gemini plays a role.

Gemini - May 22/June 21
 Your practical side has been on the fritz lately where dollars and cents are concerned. It's not too late to make a resolution to bring it back. Even if financial struggles take over your thoughts, don't let them get hold of your positive attitude. Listen to the sensible twin, Gemini.

Cancer - June 22/July 22
 Some time to yourself early in the week gives you the rest you need. Your batteries will be fully charged for an unusually hectic weekend. Something you've been waiting for finally comes via the mail. Hooked up to the information superhighway? Surf around for new opportunities.

Leo - July 23/August 23
 At work, you're better off handing in no work than producing a sloppy job, especially if your boss is a Scorpio. The demanding Scorpio won't cut you a bit of slack. A Capricorn who once made you see fireworks can't even make a spark for you now. Was it a change in Capricorn or you?

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22
 Teamwork is necessary to get through the workweek. If you find that you're the one putting in most of the effort, it's best to let your feelings be known. You'll be surprised at the results you get once you exhibit assertiveness. Let your conscious guide you through a tough decision on Friday.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23
 You may bump into an old flame in an unlikely place. This chance meeting will be enlightening and discouraging at the same time. Old feelings - good and bad - are likely to surface. If you are involved with any type of creative work, make full use of your talents and abilities. Proceed with caution when it comes to money matters. Be sure you're getting what you pay for.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22
 Try not to be impulsive just because you're bored with your daily routine. If you need a change of scene, figure out your budget first, and then give a travel agent a call. Family arguments are likely to surface later in the week. Control your emotions before things get truly out of hand.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21
 Social activities abound. Accept an invitation to a party. Go ahead, and invite a new friend out for a night on the town. You will get an enthusiastic "yes." A romantic quarrel will open your eyes to important matters. It could be time to face up to sensitive issues.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20
 Feelings of self-doubt could get between you and a loved one. Look at things from an outsider's perspective, and you just may feel better about yourself. An easier way of handling a routine work project gives you the extra time you need to tackle more creative endeavors.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18
 A heart-to-heart conversation with a family member may be necessary as tempers rise and emotions get out of control. Expressing your feelings not only helps others understand you, but it gives you the opportunity to vent. There may be some encouraging news regarding finances.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20
 A weekend getaway is the best medicine for the stressed-out Pisces. Relaxation and fun are what you need to get back on track. Dishonesty - in any form - will work against you this week. It will be especially detrimental if you are romantically involved with Aquarius.

Antibiotics replacing need for gum surgery?

Results of a recent study that reported the use of antibiotics to treat severe gum disease cases without surgery may sound encouraging to people who know they have gum disease, but don't be fooled, cautions the Academy of General Dentistry.

The study lacks statistics on the effectiveness of antibiotics as well as their side effects should cause patients to thoroughly discuss all treatment options with their dentist. Each case is different.

Gum disease, or periodontal disease, is an infection that can grow progressively worse and endanger the teeth when left untreated. An increasing number and mix of antibiotics are available to help treat the disease, sometimes in combination with a procedure called scaling and root planing. This procedure is performed by the dentist to clean periodontal pockets. These pockets are caused by toxins released and produced by the bacteria in plaque which breakdown the fibers that hold the gums tightly to the teeth. Scaling and root planing is designed to smooth root surfaces and arrange gum tissue so it is easier to keep clean.

In severe cases, surgery is performed to remove the hardened plaque build-up. Gum surgery involves cutting and lifting back the gums to remove plaque.

Patients should take several steps to reduce the risk of developing periodontal disease. In addition to regular six month dental checkups, Howard Glazer, DDS, FAGD, stresses that to prevent gum disease, all patients should practice proper home oral hygiene practices, including rinsing and brushing your teeth after every meal and before bedtime, and flossing at least once a day, preferably before bedtime.

"Early intervention is the key to fighting periodontal disease," Dr. Glazer adds. "If you notice any bleeding or puffy gums or tenderness in those areas, see your dentist soon."

YOUR EYES

by Charlotte F. Nielsen O.D.

Some children who cannot keep up with their classmates in school are sometimes classified as slow learners, in fact, their learning capabilities may actually be superior. This tragedy may result because of faulty vision, which prevents proper coordination between their eyes and their brain.

In such cases, the eyes see but the brain does not properly process the image and therefore doesn't comprehend what is seen. A child suffering from such perceptual vision problems may also be subject to temper tantrums and emotional outbursts, seemingly without cause. Today, there are ways of detecting and treating such vision problems in children.

Since vision is a key factor in the learning process your child's vision is most important to his development. An eye examination will determine if your child sees normally and easily.

Let catalogues help plan 1997 garden

With the frigid temperatures keeping us indoors it is hard to think about gardening, but now is the time to plan what we will be planting come Spring. The gardening catalogues have been arriving and there are some interesting new flowers and vegetables out there.

It is important to consider your garden plan before ordering anything new. Where is your garden located? Is there enough sun for that particular species?

The catalogues are very helpful as they answer these questions for you. Here in Illinois we are in Zone 5 and naturally need winter hardy perennials.

While leafing through the Wayside catalogue, I couldn't help but notice the new Romantica Roses, an exclusive for 1997. They blend the best qualities of the Heirlooms with modern floribundas and hybrid teas. These new French roses represent an important expansion of the English Rose style. All are hardy in our zone. They have been bred especially for a strong delicious old fashioned fragrance, have a large variety of flower form, from that of a hybrid tea to that of the old fashioned cabbage form.

The Auguste Renoir particularly caught my eye as it has huge five-inch blossoms of a deep rose pink hue and has the old fashioned form. It will grow from four to five feet tall and has excellent disease resistance. The Toulouse Lautrec also looks like a show stopper! It has beautiful luminous yellow blossoms that are old fashioned in form and medium sized blooms (three inches). Its fragrance is remtwo and two and one-half feet. Sounds like a winner to me!

If you would like to order a free catalogue from Wayside just call 1(800)845-1124.

Another catalogue that is especially fun to leaf through is Jung Quality Seeds. Everything you need is in here from flowers, herbs, vegetable seeds, trees, shrubs and bulbs to gardening equipment, and kitchen gadgets. They also have a variety of plant starting supplies.

Among the vegetables that are new for 1997 is the North Star Hybrid Sweet

Pepper. It is an early pepper that ranges in color from dark green to bright red when mature. It has the ability to set fruit in adverse cool weather conditions, and is resistant to tobacco mosaic virus. I like to purchase the different types of seed mixes such as the sweet pepper mix, the hot pepper mix, lettuce mix, etc. This gives you the opportunity to try different varieties without having to purchase a packet of seeds for every variety you want to try. I grew the hot pepper mix last year, and it performed great!

The Jung catalogue offers a lot of useful information, I think it can serve as a most useful gardening tool. It is an especially good choice for the beginning gardener as well as the more seasoned one. If you would like a free catalogue just call 1(800)247-5864.

Happy reading and planning! Until next time, peace.

iniscent of lemon and verberna. It grows to six feet tall and has good disease resistance. If you would like to add a climber to your garden, Polka is a good choice. It is an unusual mandarin orange color and grows from 10 to 12 feet tall and is virtually disease free! As I've noted before, I am especially fond of roses, and will be trying some of these in my garden.

If you are like me and have a hard time finding outstanding plants for your shady garden, Wayside has introduced the Royal Heritage Hellebores. They have lush evergreen foliage, and unusual flowers of exotic, and delicate appearance. They often bloom through snow and in late winter and bloom for up to four months through Spring. They have a wide range of color including purples, red, near black, white, green, pink and even yellow. They grow up to 18 inches tall and spread between

'Music for a Sunday Afternoon' to begin

The Woodstock Fine Arts Assn. announces its 20th season of fine classical music at the Woodstock Opera house. The series "Music for a Sunday Afternoon" will open Feb. 16, with violinist Lee-Chin Siow. She is a young prodigy who is one of the most talked about violinists appearing before the public today. She is the gold medal winner of the 1994 Henry Szyrny Violin Competition and the first prize winner of the 1994 Louise D. McMahon International Music Competition for Strings.

The second program in the series will be the "Ensemble Galilei" which will appear on March 16. This six-member ensemble melds the elegance of chamber music with the excitement of folk. Theirs is an intricate blend of medieval and modern instruments-fiddle, Celtic harp, penny-whistle, recorders and ancient viols. Medieval and Renaissance dances mix with the folk tradition in this performance that brings energy, humor and imagination to the stage.

The final program in the series will be the American Brass Quintet. They will appear on Sunday, April 20. Brass instruments are always very popular with the music-loving public. When it comes to brass quintets, there is only one that Newsweek has hailed as the "High Priests of Brass." This group recently made its 35th recording, adding to the largest body of classical brass chamber music ever recorded by one ensemble. The group is ensemble-in-residence with the prestigious Julliard School and the Aspen Music Festival.

Music for a Sunday afternoon programs begin at 2 p.m. All programs feature the opportunity to meet the performers at a reception in the beautiful opera house community parlor following the performance. Tickets for the series of three programs are $40 and $12 for students. They are available at the opera house box office by mail or phone (815)338-5300.

Saving you money

To the person who called in and complained about Fox Lake paying private companies to do work like fixing water mains, valve exercising and leak locating, etc., what you should realize is that this is saving the village (and you) money in the long run. These companies have expensive, unique equipment for these jobs that most villages do not have nor can afford. Also, to train existing employees to perform these duties would be way too expensive, impractical, and time consuming. These specialists also map out the whole town with a one-of-a-kind computer program, indicating where each water valve is, even finding some that have been paved over or lost, etc. These private contractors, as you call them, more than pay for themselves with the work they do. And, as long as the fire hydrant's port is showing and the water flows, it doesn't matter how deep into the ground they are. Please get your facts straight before you blow steam and sound unintelligent. The people in Fox Lake should be thankful that the village thinks enough to save residents money in this way.

Thanks for great job

Antioch Highway Commissioner Mike Ring and his crew, thanks for the good job you're doing keeping the roads open in the winter and repairs made in the summer in unincorporated Antioch. Keep up the good work!

Need more Chucks

As a child I used to live at Wooster Lake and I remember waiting with glee to go ice skating. But the parents all said, "Wait 'til Chuck Hancock goes out with his ice fishing cutter to test the ice for safety." He'd also would bring a snow plow to plow the snow off and make a nice skating rink. I remember him watching all the kids skating while smoking his pipe. I think we need more Chuck Hancocks in the world.

Too much pampering

Well, School District 95, it looks like Dr. Cox and his pals got you again. He gets his raise in salary and his perks and fringes. He'll get his nice new office in the $500,000 building the district bought after they spent $200,000-$300,000 renovating it. But we can't afford this program for the kids, or that program; the parents will have to pay extra. Too bad our schools are in business to cater to the administrators and pamper the teachers instead of teaching our children. Wake up, Lake Zurich!

Shut down fireplace

I can't believe how much wood people are burning lately. I can't open my windows without smelling fireplace smoke. People with allergies and children with asthma are suffering. You don't have to burn wood everyday. Have some consideration for your neighbors and the environment.

Purchase land

I think the Lake County Forest Preserve should be purchasing land and when they do, leave it alone. Their present policy is to convert forest preserve land into parks. I don't think that was the original intention. That's where they're spending their money on parks, not purchasing land.

Hip Hip Hooray

This is three cheers for the students of Stanton Jr. High and their teacher, Mrs. Vaughan. They collected all kinds of groceries for us here at Lakeland Apartments. They treated us royally and went through a lot of personal sacrifice so that we could have a happier Christmas. All of us residents wish to extend a warm thank you to Mrs. Vaughan and her students.

Clean it up

I'm calling from Lake Zurich, where we've had a great amount of development. This has brought a lot of litter. The litter blowing on the highway is ridiculous. These people may not live in our town, but they owe it to the community to pick up litter caused by their businesses. This is going to depreciate our property values and the value of their businesses will go down, too.

It wasn't me

I'm calling about TOPS Restaurant. I'm the owner. There was a message in the Jan. 3 issue that said my family was arrested for prostitution in Ela Township. I have no knowledge of this person. I run a restaurant in Mundelein, a fine restaurant, and the village declined to give me a liquor license. I'd like to see the person that said I was arrested for prostitution in Ela Township.

Think about it

In response to all the people in the Lake County area who are opposed to hooking up to sanitary sewer services, I just replaced a septic field in the Grayslake area. Sanitary sewers do cost a lot of money, but my septic field replacement cost nearly $15,000. I think it would be wise to make up your mind and realize that sanitary sewers are the way to go. You'd be better off.

Legalize pot

I thought the Clinton administration would be more progressive than the boneheads we've had lately. They're just as stupid. The people in California are more progressive than the government. Not only should pot be used for medicinal purposes, it should be legalized, period.

Student is wrong

I just finished reading the Antioch Tom-Tom high school newspaper for December and I'm saddened by the critical and naive comments by a student in regard to the funding situation at District 117. She blames the failed referendums on people who do not think students are important and who don't care about the future of this country. Sorry, she is totally wrong. She then states that past referendums would have increased the quality of education. Sorry, increased funding over the last 10-15 years has resulted in lower educational results and standards. The additional money usually ends up in administrator or teacher pockets. She finally promotes the $7 million loan the school board advocates. She has no problem of the fact that the will of the people via referendum has been ignored. The school district will now take on a high level of debt that the taxpayers will pay for in the end. If we need more schools because of development, have the developers pay for the bonds, instead of forcing taxpayers to subsidize a pro-development industry and government.

You can't handle it

I see Mundelein Mayor Marilyn Sindles claims that the village is not in the real estate business. Marilyn, the residents realize that. You can't handle impact fees, you don't know how to bring businesses to this town. Thanks for eight great years.

Don't need it?

I want to thank the village of Mundelein for letting another good business like TOPS out of our village. We don't need any more restaurants, do we guys? If we're going to isolate certain ownership, we should do a background check on every single businessman or woman in the village. Great job, guys. Way to get us a lawsuit, possibly. Also, the signs look fantastic. When people drive through our village, they know we mean real business.

Spin on facts

It's amazing the spin of that Mr. Big E of Wauconda can put on facts and reality to reshape them to suit himself. It's sad he stooped so low as to use a ringer to lure people away from his opponent in the last election—people he knew would never vote for him. It's pathetic his cronies filed a frivolous, mean-spirited lawsuit against his opponent in the last election to muddy his name, deny him his right to free speech. Of course, the suit was tossed out. But, talk about lack of integrity and low life.

Serving more

In response to "Keep it to yourselves," maybe you don't realize that the Lake Zurich Fire Department serves more than Lake Zurich. We serve Kildeer, Hawthorn Woods, Deer Park, and Forest Lake. This makes more people that the fire department is serving. Also, this equipment is used for ambulance request, accidents, and all other emergencies. In addition, the Lake Zurich Fire Department assists other departments and they assist us when things are busy.

Make both holidays

Concerning the article in the Jan. 3 Lake Villa Record by Alec Junge, why are they considering giving Pulaski Day off? Why don't they give Martin Luther King day off? They both hold a significant place in our history and they should both be days off.

Clean up trash

I'm sick of our neighbors in Round Lake Beach. Every night we listen to them fight loudly and swear. If it's not them, it's their kids. They refuse to pay a garbage bill and tried burning it at midnight. The cops stopped them, and now they have their garbage stacked in their front yard. The dogs go in their garbage and it's all over everyone else's yards on the street. No one is willing to help us with this situation.

Proof better

You need to find a new proofreader. Unfortunately, the young trombonist was Joe Rogers. Throughout the whole article, you called him Webber.

You need to fire the proofreaders and make sure they do their jobs carefully. It's shameful.

Abear's crude

I agree with the previous caller about Donna Abear's Christmas column. She was very crude and it was stupidly written. Also, the Jan. 3 column was great child humor, fitting the under-6 crowd. Her columns don't belong in any newspaper. She doesn't have any imagination besides this crude writing. I would appreciate if she would confine herself to something somewhat more appropriate.

Just a front

In the past two weeks, I have read articles in the Press about the opening of ex-trustee Jim Segin's new restaurant. I applaud you, Mr. Segin. The opening of your restaurant has served as a good front for the real reason why you resigned as trustee. I don't believe you resigned to put your efforts into the restaurant, but to skirt the investigations of the State's Attorneys office into faulty village practices, which you were a part of. Please don't expect the residents of Fox Lake that you were an innocent player in the game of paying other village officials thousands of dollars for doing volunteer work. I only hope that the State's Attorneys office will bring the truth to the surface.

Whose best interest?

I can no longer be quiet about the faulty practices of the village trustees of Fox Lake. It shocks me to read that because Trustee Thillen returned the unapproved money he was paid to do volunteer work, that he's not an upstanding, all-right kind of guy. Being paid thousands of dollars unapproved by the village board is not acceptable. I congratulate Trustee Pappas for bringing this out into the open. Unfortunately, he was accused of grandstanding. I think he was only looking out for the village's best interests when the rest of the board was only looking out for Trustee Thillen's best interests.

Military fanfare accompanies inauguration rituals

RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Editor in Chief

All the nation's eyes will be on Washington, D.C., Jan. 20 as President Bill Clinton takes the oath of office to begin his second term. Clinton's place in history may not have been decided until election day, but the preparations for the inauguration have been in the works for nearly a year.

For the last several weeks, hammers, nails and muscle have been transforming the nation's capital in preparation for the big event. Bleachers have been constructed along the 1.6-mile parade route and tents have been placed the length of mall to provide warming shelters for the 6,000 people who will march down the avenue to be saluted by President Clinton. The units will include military bands and marching units from each branch of the armed services as well as floats and high school marching bands from each of the 50 states.

The military has served a key role in each presidential inauguration since George Washington was escorted by his former Revolutionary War comrades to New York's Federal Hall to be sworn in as the nation's first president in 1789.

As the country prepares for the 53rd inauguration, the Lakeland Newspapers Editor in Chief Rhonda Hetrick Burke is currently serving with the Armed Forces Inaugural Committee in Washington, D.C., working with the public affairs office. She is a chief petty officer in the Naval Reserve assigned to Naval Training Center, Great Lakes.

military is once again playing a supporting role in the fanfare. Coordinating this support is the Armed Forces Inaugural Committee, a joint service task comprised of active duty and reserve Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines and Coast Guardsmen from throughout the United States.

"We (the military) have had a key role in the inauguration since the beginning of our country," said Commander Rudolph Brewington, the second in command of the armed forces inaugural committee. "The inauguration is one way in which the military supports the commander in chief."

Naval Training Center Great Lakes is represented at the Armed Forces Inaugural Committee by seven Naval Reservists who are working as marching leaders and in the public affairs office.

"There are military NCOs marching with each unit in the parade," Hospital Corpsman Second Class Kathleen Caffrey said. "I'm assigned to Shaw High School Band. I'll stay with their bus from the staging area early in the morning making sure they know where to get their lunch, use the restroom and form up to step off in the parade. During the parade, I'll march alongside them helping them to keep their spacing and alignment throughout the parade. See INAUGURATION page C2

Night rescue underscores dangers of thin ice

Willy Frazee points to the spot on Lake Pistakee where his snowmobile broke through the ice.—Photo by Linda Chapman

JEFF PATERSON
Staff Reporter

The importance of staying off the ice following a thaw was once again demonstrated as seven people were rescued from the freezing waters of Lake Pistakee.

"It was really poor judgment on my part and I really should have been a smarter person, bottom line," said Willie Frazee of Fox Lake, one of those taken from the water.

Trouble on the lake began at approximately 11 p.m. Jan. 9, when four snowmobilers hit bad ice as they were crossing between Eagle Point and Cedar Island.

While riding, Tim Jeschke of Ingleside hit an ice buckle and was thrown from his machine. Although his snowmobile did not go through, the ice opened up under Jeschke, putting him in the water. Two of Jeschke's companions, Willie Frazee and Scott Johnson, attempted to go to retrieve rescue equipment. The two men were unable to cross an area of thin ice, however, and also went into the water. The fourth member of the group, John Florey of Palatine, reached shore and called for emergency rescue.

Waiting in the water, Frazee, a qualified diver since 1978 who has done recovery work in the area for 13 years, could recognize the onset of hypothermia in his shaking, loss of concentration and increasing inability to move. At his urging, the men kept blowing on their hands so they would have the manual dexterity to aid in their rescue when help came.

Between 45 minutes and an hour after receiving the call, the Fox Lake Fire Department reached the three men in the water, but the rescue effort had already met with problems of its own. Ted Beskow, a member of the department for five years, said, initially, there was some confusion as to where the men were on the lake. The reason for that confusion was that rescue teams from McHenry were involved in a separate operation connected to an incident earlier in the evening.

"Locations were tough because the witnesses were pointing one way saying 'yeah, they're over there'. Just by hunch, I had the feeling they might be in over another way and they were," Beskow said.

Depke name wins the vote for justice center

ELIZABETH EAKEN
Staff Reporter

The new Lake County Juvenile Justice Complex will bear the name of former County Board Chairman Robert Depke while a portion of the compound—the detention center—is to retain the name of the old complex honoring retired Judge Minard Hulse.

A decision on the name came after a debate on the issue by members of the Lake County Board with ample public comment on the issue as well.

Earl Hassler, a volunteer chaplain at the Hulse Juvenile Complex for more than 20 years, spoke on behalf of Judge Hulse. Hassler credited Hulse with making his volunteer work possible.

"Because of him I'm able to go there because he gave us permission to go there and start a spiritual ministry," said Hassler.

Gehl DeVore, Hulse's minister for many years at the First United Methodist Church of Waukegan also spoke in favor of retaining the name. He said he had no plans to tell Hulse, who is now 101 years old, of the name change to honor Depke.

"The Hulse family will be disappointed but they won't complain," DeVore explained after the board's decision.

The proposal to name the complex after Depke originated with a suggestion from the Nineteenth Circuit Court Judges.

Several of the board members spoke out saying they believed this was setting a precedent for naming buildings, streets and so forth after officials while they were still living. James LaBelle suggested this has always been an unwritten rule and even though there is no written policy perhaps tradition should hold more weight.

After a failed motion to table the issue by LaBelle, Carol Calabresa said this put the board in a very precarious position, "it's embarrassing."

She cautioned this would open doors in the future to families pleading with them to name buildings after family members and couldn't understand what the rush was to name the complex so quickly.

Depke

Suzi Schmidt was outspoken on the issue noting she never has felt she needed to have anything named after her to receive recognition for her job.

"You're elected to do a job and do it," she said emphatically.

Pamela Newton said she took issue with Schmidt's comment, noting the old complex was named after Hulse while living and many other places around the county have been named after those who do an exceptional job.

In line with this opinion was a comment from Martha Marks who stressed Depke wasn't highly regarded county wide.

"He was removed from office by our constituents and declined to run for office in the township amidst a financial scandal. What's the rush?" she said.

Yorkhouse cut from transportation plan

ELIZABETH EAKEN
Staff Reporter

Members of the Lake County Board may have heard the voices of the voters in their heads Tuesday when they voted in favor or removing the Yorkhouse Road extension plan from their 2005 transportation plan. Several other changes were also attached to the resolution.

Yorkhouse was perhaps the most controversial of the projects taken off the 2005 plan. Following the vote the board members were presented with a single rose by appreciative citizens such as Susan Zingle of Citizens for a Better County which lobbied for several years to have the Yorkhouse extension deleted.

After the meeting Zingle said the county board and the forest preserve's intentions are evident, "I'm more than satisfied," she explained.

Other changes were modifications to the Strategic Regional Arterial System of the county including: Route 173 from Sheridan Road to Green Bay Road; Sheridan Road from Sunset Avenue to the Wisconsin Line; Route 59 from Highway 12 to Route 173 and Route 132 from Route 83 to Route 59.

Arterial roads approved for addition to the plan include improvements to: Ill. Route 131 from Route 120 to the Wisconsin border; U.S. 41 from Route 120 to the Tri-state Tollway; Route 120 from Green Bay Road to Route 41; Sunset Avenue from the Amstutz Expressway to Green Bay Road and Route 83 from Route 132 to Route 173.

The county plan update will now be forwarded to the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS) for consideration in their 2020 plan which is expected to be unveiled by early summer.

Inauguration

and as they pass in review in front of President Clinton."

Caffrey and three other members of Naval Hospital Unit 2213 from Naval Reserve Readiness Center Great Lakes are serving as military marching leaders. The other members of the unit are: Chief Petty Officer Charles Sharp of Waukegan, Hospital Corpsman First Class David Reiher of Winthrop Harbor and Hospital Corpsman First Class Linda Barker of Great Lakes.

"We saw the need for support for the inauguration advertised in "Naval Reservist News" and thought this would be a great annual training opportunity," Caffrey said. "Although all of them are hospital corpsmen, they will only be called up to exercise their military specialty if an emergency arises."

Helping to tell the Armed Forces' story is Lt. Cmdr. Elizabeth Jones, and Chief Petty Officer James Vorndran.

"This is an historic moment. The Inaugural events signify a change, or in this case, a continuation of command for the president, who is our commander in chief," said Jones. "Our role in public affairs is to help showcase the 3,000 plus service members who are participating, either in marching units or as part of the joint service honor cordon lining the parade route."

As public affairs representatives, the three will help escort the 21,000 media representatives credentialized to cover the inaugural events and coordinate interview with military participants in the parade.

All of the individuals involved in the Armed Forces Inaugural Committee rehearsed events for the special day. Military units staged a parade down Pennsylvania Avenue and the national media covered the mock swearing in ceremony and pass-in-review where military members portrayed key individuals such as President Clinton, Vice President Gore, and their families.

Thin Ice

Beskow found the men an estimated 150 yards from Cedar Island and guided other rescuers to the spot. Beskow said the rescue was delayed by the problems, but added it was also "a complicated rescue, to try and keep everybody safe as possible while you're doing it."

Two other snowmobiles, brought to the scene by four people attempting to assist in the rescue, went through the ice, bringing the total number of people in the water to seven. A member of the rescue team dressed in a dry suit also went through the ice 75 feet from Frazee.

"If it had just been having to recover Willie and the other two guys, it wouldn't have been too bad, but when the other people started coming, it complicated matters," Beskow said.

After being towed from the open area in a rubber raft, Frazee was put on a snowmobile with Beskow. Johnson and Jeschke, unable to walk, were transported off the ice by rescue sled and airboat.

Shortly after starting toward shore, the machine Frazee and Beskow were riding broke through the ice.

After getting out the water, Frazee ran the remaining quarter of a mile to shore.

"My feet were like clubs. I had no boots on, just socks. I was soaking wet and frozen," he said.

Reaching his home on Mason Avenue, Frazee peeled off his clothes and soaked for an hour under a warm shower. When paramedics arrived, he was still shaking uncontrollably with a temperature of only 95 F.

Frazee was later transported to Northern Illinois Medical Center, as were Jeschke and Johnson. All three were treated and released at shortly after 3:30 a.m. The others who went through the ice during the rescue signed releases after being treated on the scene.

Beskow expressed thanks to those at Lakeside Resorts who tried to help by volunteering the use of snowmobiles and by providing coffee. With some of the delays experienced in the rescue, he also gave credit to Frazee for keeping a clear head in the situation.

"I think his keeping the other guys calm probably kept them alive, because it took us a little while to get out there," Beskow said.

Still recovering from frostbite, Tim Jeschke, 38, considers himself extremely lucky to be alive. He said he would like to see more equipment, particularly lights, devoted to ice rescue emergencies so that a future tragedy might be avoided.

"This area needs some type of practice, some type of equipment, that is capable of finding people stranded at night. Anybody that was in worse shape than me, older than me, or had any type of ailment, had no chance of surviving that amount of time out there," said Jeschke, who estimated that he was found 20 minutes after Johnson and Frazee.

As an ironic postscript to the rescue, Jeschke's snowmobile, abandoned on the ice that night, was later stolen by someone ignoring the obvious danger in the area. The machine was recovered by police late on Jan. 11 near the intersection of Winn and Westward in Spring Grove with significant damage to its frame and one ski.

The danger on the lake in 1997 is already a matter of record. So far this year, Willie Frazee had already recovered three snowmobiles, with two other machines awaiting recovery. These machines have now been joined by the four others that went through the ice during the incident on Thursday and Friday of last week.

Looking back on the experience, Frazee said that it's important to remember that all is not necessarily as it seems on the lake.

"The thing is, everybody's got these new machines and they're dying for snow, but we had that 64-degree (F) temperature on Saturday (Jan. 4). When we get snow now, it's going to act as an insulator... and the lake's not going to freeze until we get that super-sub-zero weather," he said. Frazee added that, despite his experience working on the lake, his need for rescue proved that "that no one is invincible."

Frazee also had a vital message for those planning to venture out onto the ice.

"I'd like to basically put a plea to the recreational snowmobiler that, while it may look like a winter wonderland out there, you're really looking at death's door right around the corner."

Snowmobiler killed

ANTIOCH TOWNSHIP—Craig Mors, 31, of Antioch Township was killed when his snowmobile was struck by a GMC truck with a snowplow in front.

According to Lake County Sheriff's Department reports, on Jan. 10, Mors was killed when the snowmobile he was piloting was going 40 to 50 mph and blew a stop sign at the intersection of Grass Lake Road and Rena Avenue and was struck by the snowplow.

Preliminary indications suggest Mors may have been drinking before the accident, according to Cpl. Thomas Braze of the Sheriff's Department. Toxicology results will give a definitive answer.

The driver of the GMC, Jeffrey Burke, also of Antioch Township, was not ticketed. He is not expected to get a ticket, according to Braze.—by ALEC JUNG

Victory plans surgical center

LINDENHURST—Victory Memorial Hospital officials received word state officials approved a project to provide surgical and diagnostic center in Lindenhurst.

The center will be located at Victory's property south of Grand Avenue just west of Deep Lake Road. The center is planned to be ready by 1998.

"With the opening of our new surgery center, residents in central and west Lake County will have convenient access to a wide range of surgical procedures currently available at the hospital in Waukegan," says Tim Harrington, president of Victory Health Services.

The projected two-story facility will include full surgical suites supported by a registration area, private dressing rooms, anesthesia services, recovery room, and a family-oriented waiting room with children's play area.

Services will include general x-rays, CT-scans, ultrasounds and mammograms performed at the center. A full range of laboratory testing will also be available.—by ALEC JUNG

Eckmann to pass the torch

LIBERTYVILLE—The decision of Mayor Jo Ann Eckmann not to seek reelection April 1 appears to leave the field open to Trustee Duane Laska, who has already filed a petition. Eckmann is stepping down after eight years of duties that have resulted in growing demands on her time. The village has not seen the last of her, however; her involvement will continue in some way, she promised.

"I've done all I set out to accomplish and more," she said, noting the MainStreet project has brought new life and vitality to downtown.

That may well be where her volunteer spirit will take her.—by SUZIE REED

Admiral to visit chamber

LAKE COUNTY—The Libertyville-Mundelein-Vernon Hills Chamber of Commerce will welcome Rear Admiral Kevin Patrick Green when they gather for lunch Jan. 21. The luncheon will begin at 11 a.m. at Pisan's Ristorante Italiano, 5105 Washington St. in Gurnee. Green assumed command of the Great Lakes Naval Training Center in June 1996. County halts gaming growth

WAUKEGAN—The county board voted 12 to 9 in support of a moratorium on gambling expansion in Illinois until a statewide referendum allowing citizens a vote on whether they want gambling expanded is held and the Presidents' study on the effects of Gambling is complete.

The motion to include this issue in the board's legislative packet being sent to Springfield was introduced by Judy Martini of Antioch who said Senate Bill 431 had been sitting in the rules committee for two years.

"This is not a local issue; it is a state issue," Martini told the board. She emphasized her belief that gambling operations impact larger areas than the municipalities where they are located.

Martini said a renewed push for expansion of gambling in Ill. is said to include five new riverboats of which two are for Lake County.—by ELIZABETH EAKEN

Library acts after fright

GRAYSLAKE—A young child climbed onto a 3 1/2-foot bookshelf overlooking an open two-story atrium at the new Grayslake Library, sending a jolt of adrenaline into the hearts of the library staff who saw it happen during the first week the new facility opened. Luckily the child was seen and pulled down before a disaster occurred.

This was enough for the youth department employees to become very nervous and alert Administrative Librarian Roberta Thomas to the perceived danger of the low shelves.

"We figured kids would stand on the bottom shelf and peer over," Thomas said of pre-construction discussions on the design.

The library will install windows around the atrium which is located on the second floor in the preschool area of the library. The total cost is just under $11,000 for the project which will take around five weeks to complete. To ensure a child doesn't decide to climb on the shelves again the library staff is being assigned in shifts to guard the area until the windows are installed.—by ELIZABETH EAKEN

Board jumps into mall fracas

LAKE ZURICH—Before it gets too late — if it hasn't already — Lake Zurich officials want to put a stop to the North Barrington Collection mall.

Where the Villages of Hawthorn Woods, Kildeer and Long Grove sent resolutions of opposition early on in the process, Lake Zurich remained quiet.

But not after the Jan. 13 committee of the whole meeting, where Mayor Deborah A. Vasels was instructed to contact the presidents or mayors of surrounding communities to set up a meeting between them and a designated trustee from the boards of Hawthorn Woods, North Barrington, and Wauconda.

If a meeting date cannot be arranged by Jan. 16, Vasels said a contingent plan will be to approve a resolution against the mall at the Lake Zurich Board of Trustees meeting on Jan. 20.

The North Barrington Plan Commission recommended approval of the 1.2 million square foot shopping mall, proposed by the Taubman Co., on 110 acres at Route 12 and Old McHenry Road, by a vote of 5-1 on Jan. 8. The proposal now goes to the village's board of trustees.—by SPENCER SCHEIN

Meyer answers Vanderventer's charges on dismissal

JEFF PATERSON

Staff Reporter

Following her dismissal from the Lake County Recorder's Office, Alberta Meyer has taken issue with her former boss' account of events.

In that story, reported last week, Lake County Recorder of Deeds Mary Ellen Vanderventer was quoted as saying that she denied Meyer's request for time off this month because of scheduled training and Meyer's chronic absenteeism.

After offering Meyer the chance to go on 90-day probation, Vanderventer said she had fired Meyer because the six-year employee had issued an ultimatum that Vanderventer either comply with the request for time off or fire her.

Meyer, however, does not remember it that way.

Meyer agrees that she put in a request for time off in January, for a trip to Springfield connected to her duties as Trustee for Fox Lake, but that no reason was given by Vanderventer as to why the request was refused.

"Mary Ellen never once told me that she was starting a program of training. It was never mentioned to me at all," Meyer said.

She also denied giving Vanderventer any type of "ultimatum" concerning her request for time off in January, and said "if I didn't go to Springfield, it wasn't a big deal ... because there were other times they (the Village Board) went to Springfield and I didn't go."

For Meyer, the issue wasn't the time off in January, it was being asked to accept probation.

Meyer said that, when she asked why she was being placed on probation, Vanderventer told her that it pertained to Meyer's absenteeism in 1996.

Meyer

Meyer said that Nustra did not follow official County policy in that he did not allow "personal days (leave)," but that he attempted to compensate in other ways, including granting more absentee days.

Meyer said that the days granted to her by Nustra came during her campaign for Recorder and during a period when her husband was sick.

Told by Vanderventer that her former record while working for Nustra was "unacceptable," Meyer said that she was at a loss as to how to correct the situation after the fact.

"You can't go back on what someone else allowed and penalize the employee," Meyer said. "I said 'I understand your view, but you want to penalize me for what was already granted to me and I'm not signing this letter (accepting probation).'"

Meyer said that, according to policy, employees are supposed to receive three verbal warnings, and a written warning before they are placed on probation.

After being given time to "think about" her decision, Meyer told Vanderventer there was "no decision to be made" and Meyer was terminated at approximately 11:55 a.m. on Dec. 30.

"I just don't feel that it was a justified cause to be terminated," Meyer said.

For her part, Vanderventer said she still feels the dismissal was justified and stands by her statement that Meyer gave her an ultimatum.

Vanderventer challenged the idea that all Meyer's time off while working for Nustra was "pre-approved," because much of it was logged as "sick time," incidents of which employees should have no prior knowledge.

While she could not answer for Nustra's administration, Vanderventer could also find no other pattern of absenteeism similar to Meyer's in the records of other employees.

"No one comes near this abuse. If this was Mr. Nustra's way of handling things, no one else was treated that way," Vanderventer said.

The county recorder of deeds also said that her procedure in offering Meyer probation was the correct one.

Vanderventer said that County guidelines read that such probation can be made at the discretion of the supervisor "at any time during the employee's tenure," and that it can occur without either written or verbal warning.

"The probation must be well-documented, giving the reason, the plan and the outcome expected and all of that was given in writing to Alberta," Vanderventer said.

She added that a copy of the same notice had been cleared and filed with the county's human resources department.

Finally, Vanderventer said that the offer to Meyer of part-time employment was made "in good faith."

She added that it was an option offered to Meyer, because, as it was, the taxpayers were paying full medical and dental coverage for "someone who was working less than a part-timer."

"To me, that was not fair," Vanderventer said.

Yorkhouse symbol of political change

Good riddance! That describes widely held feelings now that the misdirected, ill-conceived extension of Yorkhouse Rd. has been assigned to a footnote of Lake County history.

In action taken by the County Board's Public Service Committee, controversial 20-year-old plans to extend the roadway through an internationally acclaimed wetlands demonstration area along the DesPlaines River, were dropped from the 2005 transportation plan, the county's transportation "wish list."

Despite a barrage of charges from environmentalists and criticism of misuse of public funds, the Yorkhouse Rd. extension plan had been kept alive through a combination of iron will and pressure tactics of the county board's go-go growth bloc. In a changed political climate, Yorkhouse Rd. melted faster than a popsicle in the July 4 sun.

Yorkhouse Rd. formerly was a symbol of desecration of natural resources and political manipulation of the pro-development forces guiding county government. Today Yorkhouse Rd. stands as a symbol of failed concepts and the dawning of a new era.

County officials wasted nearly a half million dollars with studies claiming there would be no negative impact on wetlands and endangered species. They pulled strings with the state in a hokey "land swap" to get jurisdiction for right-of-way. At one time, the extension was even hailed as the prime "escape route" for citizens in northeast Lake County in the event of a nuclear disaster at the Zion generating plant.

All along, vigorous opponents led by Susan Zingle, a Yorkhouse Rd. resident, recognized the project for what it was, an environmental nightmare, a political boondoggle and a thinly disguised effort to enhance the development rights of influential landowners. In the Warren-Newport Township area, Yorkhouse Rd. was an issue in every recent local election. Elsewhere in Lake County, Yorkhouse Rd. became an ugly example of influence peddling where the county's future is treated as a bargaining chip.

Good riddance!

Bottom pressures exerted for casino

With interest in expansion of riverboat casino gambling in Illinois lagging in the high places of government, participants in the well organized and deep pocketed Fox Riverboat Limited Partnership have resorted to a new tactic to keep their enterprise from getting lost in the Springfield shuffle.

They are employing a "bottom up" marketing strategy to create demand for their product from grassroots politicians rather than a "top down" approach courting General Assembly legislative approval for creation of new licenses.

While legislators are grappling with pressing problems of the day like school finance reform, crime reduction, Meigs Field's future, McDome as an answer to an enclosed lakefront stadium, a third airport at Peotone, the casino promoters adroitly have enlisted Fox Lake politicians through a resolution process that spells out revenue sharing from the gambling take of a proposed casino.

After being sent packing by neighbors of a Barrington site and rebuffed by a failed referendum in the Antioch area, the casino partners are making an all-out thrust in Fox Lake where a site off Rte. 12 represents pretty much a last chance. Starved for new revenue, Fox Lake officials quickly adopted an agreement to take 25 percent of the annual gaming tax revenue estimated at upwards of $15 million. The partnership's inter-governmental resolution cuts in Lake County and McHenry County for a piece of the tax swag, estimated at $4 and $3 million respectively. Grant Township was designated for $500,000, prompting one citizen to inquire at a meeting last week why the township was willing to accept such a pittance.

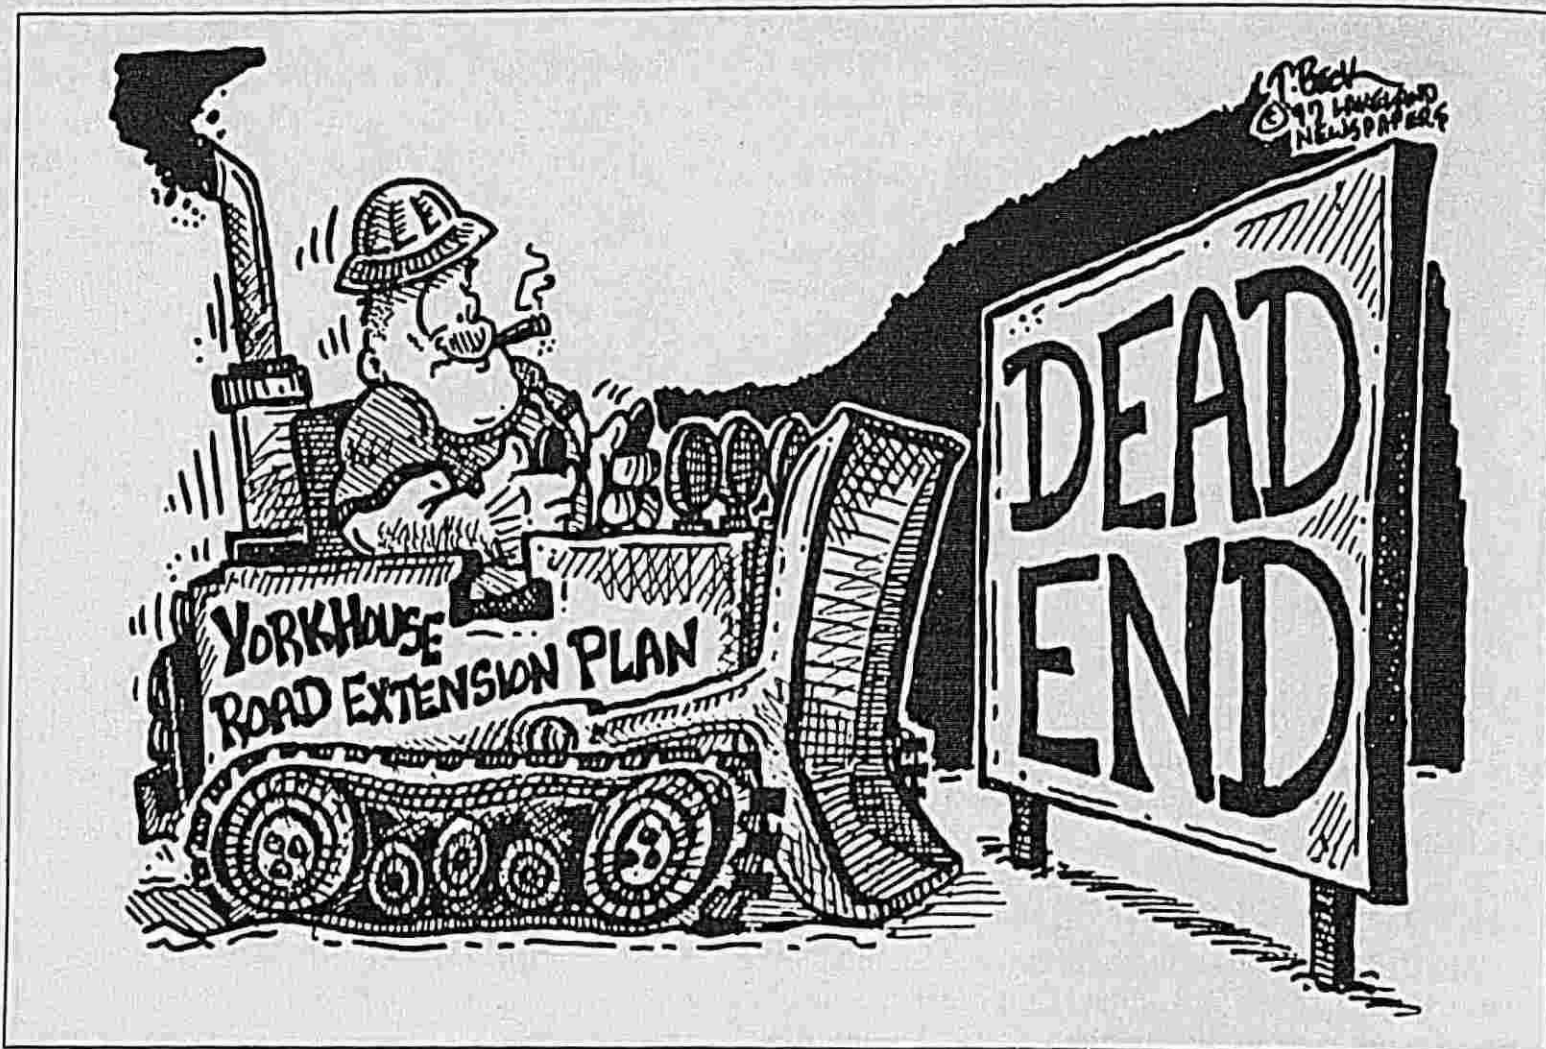

Even though Fox Lake Mayor Ken Hamsher led a contingent to Springfield to lobby for a license, lawmakers initially were unmoved by the new "bottom up" strategy. State Sen. William Peterson (R-Long Grove), who represents the southern portion of the Chain O'Lakes, spoke of the advantage of a local referendum. State Rep. Verna Clayton (R-Buffalo Grove) questioned so-called economic benefits of riverboat gambling. Newly elected State Rep. Mark Beaubien (R-Barrington) clearly has reservations about adding riverboat casinos.

With millions at stake, the impatience of the partners is to be expected. And, with Santa Claus staring them in the face, the enthusiasm of local elected officials is understandable. But are they looking at a gift or allowing themselves to be pressured? No one knows for sure where the citizenry stands on the expansion of legal gambling.

Before the riverboat enterprise gives away any more gambling proceeds that don't exist and local politicians start dividing imaginary taxes, Fox Lake area voters rightly should have their say in the same way their neighbors in Barrington and Antioch were able to be heard on previous casino boat siting attempts.

Female wrestlers gaining a toe-hold

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

This must be a generational thing. I just don't get high school girls competing in boys wrestling competition.

Women in the military, female airline pilots, distaff police officers and lady firefighters; women blasting through the glass ceiling of business and industry. Gals handling the big transport trucks and building homes. More power to them! But teenage girls wrestling in high school competition? There oughtta be a law!

Mandy Thompson is somewhat of a pioneer, having been a member of the Libertyville High School wrestling team for five years. Now Molly Bitters has cracked the canvas curtain as a member of Wauconda High's junior varsity mat squad.

It must be a mark of the times that girl wrestlers are being accepted. After all, boys and girls are being brought up now to be gender neutral.

But what about girl wrestling? There's a difference. Girls vs. girls on the mat. While girl wrestlers is a trail-blazing thing, why not introduce female wrestling as an inter-scholastic sport? I'm guessing that school officials and parents alike would lump girl mat competition with mud wrestling, the sort of thing you see in tavern back lots and men's clubs. We draw the line in strange places.

Mandy and Molly, I'm told, are holding their own with the boys. No pun intended. Girl wrestlers are OK, no discrimination, equal opportunity, fair competition. Girl wrestling would be something else.

Yep, I admit I'm an old fogie.

OUT OF OFFICE—State Sen. David Barkhausen bowed out of office last week the same way he conducted himself during his 16 years representing east and west Lake County's areas, abstaining from fanfare. A Lake Bluff Republican, Barkhausen was more interested in improving the works of government than making a name for himself with high profile legislation. Ironically, an insider's charge that he misused office funds provided media scrutiny for two years, detracting from his overall workmanlike efforts to serve Lake County constituents with integrity and honesty. The charge ultimately was dropped as unfounded. Hailing from an influential downstate Republican family, Barkhausen was elected a state representative in 1980. Two years later he defeated State Rep. Donald Deuster for a State Senate seat in a bitter fight.

PENNY PINCHING—No doubt about it. Employers are getting more tight-fisted. An Illinois Chamber of Commerce survey reported that the average number of paid holidays this year will be 8.4 days, down from 8.9 days in 1996. And that includes the fact that 25 percent of 900 responding firms already have decided to make Friday, Dec. 26, 1997, a paid holiday because Christmas falls on Thursday this year.

COMING AND GOING—Wisconsinites like to keep track of things like this. Last January, an average of 211 Illinois motorists left Milwaukee's Gen. Mitchell Airport each day compared to 96 in 1994 and 63 in 1993. This bespeaks, we're told, of Mitchell Field's convenient parking and easy terminal access. Wonder if our neighbors will be quick to report on 1996 findings—if Illinois traffic drops off?

NICE GOING—Belated congratulations to Atty. Murray Conzelman, first recipient of the Lake County Bar Assn. Award of Excellence. The municipal law specialist began practicing in Waukegan in 1953. Before becoming a Lake Forest resident, Murray and his family resided in Millburn.

PARTY LINES

Changing winds change Bob Neal's politics

Party Lines, the Lakeland Newspapers column of political opinion, is prepared from staff reports.

Say one thing about County Board Rep. Bob Neal (R-Wadsworth). He can count votes.

As new chairman of the County Board Public Service Committee, Neal led the charge to scuttle the controversial extension of Yorkhouse Rd. through a protected county wetlands area.

With political winds changing drastically in the past year, Neal professed his feeling that there's "no need for the road at this time." Oh? Two years ago, after winning re-election by opposing Wadsworth Road, Neal immediately joined the County Board pro-growth majority pushing for the extension.

Could Bob's change of heart have something to do with the fact that he'll be facing re-election in two years? Neal says his position was "misrepresented." Some of his constituents use stronger language to describe his tap dance on a major public issue.

Going forward—The 'death of Former Warren Township Highway

Comm. Frank Thomas, 54, a victim of heart failure last week, will not affect the prosecution of misconduct in connection with the highway department.

A special prosecutor in the office of State's Atty. Mike Waller, had a terse reply when questioned. "The case will proceed with other co-defendants," was the response.

The former highway commissioner, his son, and three others were accused of misdirecting funds from a $2 million budget. They are awaiting trial.

Fun time—You know it's the silly (campaign) season when candidates like Grant Township Supervisor Gordy Klesgen talk about "shaking babies hands and kissing the moms." Lighten up folks, Gordy's only making a joke.

Wonderful town—John Steinke, whose passions are the Packers and politics, has been living a fantasy life, what with Green Bay in the pro football playoffs. The College of Lake County political scientist was at Lambeau Field two successive weekends. John confesses to having a secret source for tickets.

Watch, wait—County Board Rep. Bonnie Thomson Carter (R-Ingleside) for one wasn't bowled over by Pam Newton's rhetoric at her first meeting as chairperson of the key Lake County Board building, planning and zoning committee.

Thomson Carter

about the "new" Newton.

Longevity—Colleen Kastling and Ken Marabella have been around the Mundelein Village Hall for a long time. Kastling became village clerk in 1977 and is running for reelection. Village Manager Marabella is the dean of Lake County village administrators with more than a quarter century of service.

Marked man—Former County Board Rep. Ed Fojtik still keeps tabs on what's going on in the County Building even though he no longer is on the 10 meeting a week pace. Fojtik, reflecting on his four years in office, is telling friends that former County Board Chairman Bob Depke will be remembered as a great leader. When Depke stopped out of office, he said he was sorry that Fojtik's friendship "cost him his (Fojtik) job."

Electoral explanation—When Mundelein Trustee Ira Kosova considered running for the mayor's seat, he reportedly justified his motives to incumbent Village President Marilyn Sindles. His name on the ballot, he said, would take votes away from mayoral challenger Allen Stubitsch, thereby ensuring Sindles' reelection.

Consulting—Al Jourdan already is establishing offices for his new political consulting business so friends and supporters know he is serious about retiring from active public life.

Jourdan was honored at a packed house last Sunday at the IUOE Banquet Hall, Lakemoor, on stepping down after 24 years as auditor of McHenry County. Jourdan is highly respected as the long-time McHenry County Republican chairman and he also did a stint as Illinois Republican chair during the Thompson years.

Al is on a first name basis with every GOP luminary of the past two decades.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Alternative to ego politics

The Grayslake village officials' campaign for a swimming pool and civic center has all the elements of ego-based politics. The claim that our community needs these facilities is based upon the personal opinions and desires of the mayor and trustees, and studies they have formulated and control. Much of the support they claim are self-serving interpretations of history and events, including events they precipitated. They speak as if they will be in office forever to prevent a tax increase arising from this issue. They apparently can see into the future of the village's financial picture regarding the funding of this project and know it will never cause a tax increase.

Continued questioning by citizens about the financing plan for the project is interpreted by the mayor and trustees as an unwillingness or inability to understand—The superior knowledge syndrome. It is inconceivable, of course, that the explanations of the financial plan continue to be purposefully vague or poorly rendered.

If village officials are not deliberately avoiding it, they seem to be unaware of the approach to this issue that is best for all of us. It is the best measure of a community's demands and their willingness to pay for them with tax money. It is an approach in which the mayor and trustees need not stake their political futures on an issue that voters have rejected twice. It absolutely resolves the issue, is straightforward, above-board and eminently democratic.

The solution: put the question to referendum. It is $11,000,000 of the people's money. Let the people make the decision.

Spreading the lies

Editor:

Wauconda Mayor Eschenbach has named his party well. He firmly believes that the more growth there is, the less the taxes on people. Spread the burden evenly and share the burden less. Such a belief is simplistic and very, very short sighted.

How do you gain by saving a few dollars on taxes, if you must leave town time and again just to find peace and quiet and harmony a hundred miles away? And didn't you come here in the first place because of the small town atmosphere and the feeling of having neighbors, people you can identify and shake hands with, instead of living anonymously day in and day out as cars jam your streets and spew noxious fumes?

Growth for the sake of growth is cancerous. It destroys all in its wake—land, trees, the environment, God's simple creatures; a recognizable town to call home; contented people belonging; children having a place to identify with and feel safe in.

So much easier for a town to go along and buy the lie. Not think. Not observe. Not object to being sheep. Ignoring the lessons of the quality communities that fight to maintain their proud identities, individualities and quality in their lives.

Money is not more important than the human factor.

'Pie in the sky' proposal

Editor:

Is the spending of $11 million on a swimming pool and a civic center supported by a contract with the landfill for real? Questions are certainly in order, and answers should be forthcoming. Contracts are known to fail. Is this a possibility? Certainly, and for a myriad of reasons, because no one knows for certain what the future will bring. Even if the contract remains viable, are we not becoming subservient to the landfill by losing control because of our dependency on their payments? Will this create an expansion of the landfill?

The construction of buildings is the easiest and least expensive part of this process. The cost of operating them far exceeds the cost of construction. Indoor swimming pools and civic centers are not known for their profitability and high cash flow. A serious question must be asked if this combination can produce enough return to pay for its own upkeep. Doubts are very high that it cannot.

At first glance, this "pie in the sky" looks very delicious and tempting which makes it all the more precarious and dangerous. It could explode like a stick of dynamite in the faces of its perpetrators. Where will the debris fall if not on the Grayslake Community and its taxpayers?

No. Central SNAFU

Editor:

It is altogether evident that METRA erred in justifying subsidized commuter trains on the Wisconsin Central railroad. This lost $100 million bash fails in attracting people from existing lines as well as new riders, with no noticeable dent in traffic congestion, now or in the future.

METRA's apparatchiks, Philip Pagano et al., now want to service us with even more empty trains. Our Lake County politicians, greased by well-connected developers, in reality meant the North Central Commuter to commute urbanites into suburbanites, no pun intended.

Once here, our guests will cruise around just like the rest of us, making the expansion of Route 53, a necessity, to the chagrin of its opponents.

Sing "C'est la vie," Deb Giles. Had our tax dollar been used instead to build the 27 overpasses Lake County sorely needs, traffic congestion would have been alleviated for the next 100 years. Each and every resident would have benefited instead of only a handful.

Oh well, let Pam Newton et al, exact that four penny gas tax and build them after all.

Our gratitude to you, for "two" Vernon Township train stations within one mile of each other and the racket of those blowing horns.

Bell nominated

Editor:

I would like to second your nomination of George Bell's name to identify a portion of the Lake County Forest Preserve.

He did all the things you mention in your editorial of Jan. 3 and more to preserve open space. He even supported Mike Graham when he had reasonable ideas along these lines.

In Fremont Township he was responsible for the referendum that would have made it possible for us to have an Open Space District like the one in Libertyville Township, which was roundly defeated by the money and influence of the usual alliance of rapacious developers and their politician cronies.

He led in quashing the plans for developers to build 1700 houses in the area now encompassed by the Forest Preserve's Countryside Golf Course and adjoining land now zoned for two acre minimum lot size.

As an office holder—County Board Member, Township Supervisor and School Board President—he was always available even to those who disagreed with him and a strong supporter of the public's right to know—Freedom of Information and Open Meetings Acts.

I had a few disagreements with George over him not doing enough for open space, but what he did do, marked him as a man ahead of his time and someone devoted to service to the public

Creating ways to cut the fat and get more competitive

The first danger signal Gene noticed was the shrinking checking account balance. A quick check of the current bills revealed that he could only pay half of them immediately.

The end-of-the quarter sales report, confirmed that sales were lagging nearly 15 percent behind last year.

When a new competitor entered the market six months ago Gene wasn't too concerned. Business had been good and there was plenty of cash.

Now suddenly, things were going downhill fast and Gene wondered how he could keep up with expenses.

Fortunately, Gene's situation is not an actual case this week. However, I've worked with many business owners in similar circumstances during the last 10 years and situations just like this do occur all too frequently.

A common question I receive is, "How do you protect your business from competition, economic downturns and other adversities?" One of the best protections I know of is to run a cost effective operation. When you run a lean, trim business, devoid of an unnecessary expenses, you can deal with tough times when they come.

Running a bare-bones operation is always easier to talk about than do. Business expenses just naturally have a way of piling up during the good times. When sales are up and profits are increasing, expenses tend to creep up as well. Getting rid of those little extras is often more difficult than one would expect. Trimming fat from a business requires dedicated, day-to-day discipline.

An ounce of prevention

One of the best ways to check your expense fitness level is to compare your expenses with other businesses like yours. When you compare your costs to industry averages, you can see quickly if any expense categories are out of line.

One word of caution here. You should not be content to be "average" in your industry. In tough times, only the best survive.

Your goal must be to position your firm well above the average.

Another good principle to apply is to look beyond the largest expense categories.

Remember, small expenses add up, too. Rather than trimming a big category by 15 to 20 percent, look for 15 to 20 areas that you can trim by 1 to 2 percent. The results will be positive and you don't run the risk of crippling your business because you cut too deeply in one area.

Some businesses aren't fortunate enough to have industry averages with which to compare their own numbers. In this case, you must use your own historical financial statements as a guideline.

A good starting point is to calculate your operating expenses as a percentage of sales. Look at the last three or four years to see if

Bank name change now official

During an age when bank names are changing faster than you can say merger, there is one community bank that is making a change to reflect its tried and true reputation of stability, dependability and outstanding customer service. First National Bank of Antioch is now officially First National Bank-Employee Owned (FNBEEO).

The move to make the name change official was implemented to show the pride in ownership that comes with being one of a handful of banks in the country that is employee owned.

"Incorporating Employee Owned into our name is a great honor for us," said bank President Ted. C. Axton, "it reflects the pride and dedication to impeccable service we have as employee owners."

Though the bank had been using employee owned in its name for the past two years, FNBEEO's board of directors recently approved resolutions, making the change official. Because employee owned had been in effect since 1994 the only change customers and community members will experience is the name.

Heartland Home Brew sees customer growth

GLORIA DAVIS
Staff Reporter

Five years ago, Clarence and Sarah Bares saw great potential in furnishing beer brewing supplies to people who enjoy making beer at home.

With many of the big brewers closing down, and the advent of micro-breweries, the brewing of beer at home has become a hobby that's growing rapidly.

In 1978, President Jimmy Carter made brewing 100 gallons of beer a year at home, not to be sold for profit, perfectly legal. If two adults in the same family want to make beer, they are allowed to brew 200 gallons to be consumed by themselves, or given away to family and friends.

The Bares put their idea to work in Vernon Hills, and Heartland Home Brew carried everything needed to make fine beer at home, from hops and malt extract to actual brewing equipment.

Last August, the Bares moved Heartland Home Brew to Grayslake, at 888 E. Belvidere Rd., Unit 215, in the Atkinson Industrial Complex.

"Many of our customers are people who frequent the new micro-breweries, who now want to make their own beer," says Sarah.

Besides supplying brewing equipment for beginners, Heartland also carries advanced kegging systems, counter pressure bottle fillers, wort chillers and much, much more. Heartland has a complete catalogue of brewing accessories for customers to look at.

The first year in business, Heartland served approximately 900 customers. This year, their customer list has grown to 3,000.

Since Heartland Home Brew is located in an industrial complex, there is no store front, but the supplies are sold at retail prices, Mon. through Fri., from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and Sat. from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Advanced Brewing Technology is the wholesale end of Heartland, selling to other brew stores.

Heartland's knowledgeable and friendly staff will help customers find the items they need to make a good brew of their own. Call (847)548-2334 for more information.

RE/MAX of Northern Illinois plans office in Fox Lake

RE/MAX of Northern Illinois announced that it plans to open its first franchised office in Fox Lake as part of an expansion program for 1997, the year it celebrates its 20th anniversary.

"We have been studying Fox Lake for some time and have concluded that the market there is ready for the RE/MAX concept," said Betty Hegner, president and co-founder of RE/MAX of Northern Illinois.

Her organization has led the Chicago metropolitan residential real estate market in annual closed sales volume each year since 1989. Currently, there are 115 offices and approximately 2,300 sales associates in the RE/MAX of Northern Illinois network, which covers approximately the northern third of Illinois from Lake Michigan to the Quad Cities area.

"We are now identifying candidates who have the business skills and entrepreneurial drive to succeed as RE/MAX broker/owners and as RE/MAX sales associates in Fox Lake and in several other communities of similar size across the northern portion of Illinois," said Hegner.

"Our goal is to add 15 offices to our northern Illinois network this year," she said.

RE/MAX has consistently ranked as the top rated real estate service franchise in "Entrepreneur Magazine's" annual "Franchise 500" listing. In December 1995 "Franchise Buyer" magazine ranked RE/MAX as number one among U.S. real estate organizations. RE/MAX also was named winner of the 1996 Franchise Relations Award among franchises with more than 1,000 units.

The award, presented by "Income Opportunities" magazine, honors franchises with the best franchisor-franchisee relationships.

"The RE/MAX system provides broker/owners with support services that help attract top sales professionals, including advanced education and training, an international referral network, an on-line communications network and a strong advertising program," Hegner explained. "At the regional level we assist broker/owners directly by providing support in such areas as agent recruiting management systems, operational profitability and compliance with the franchise agreement."

RE/MAX of Northern Illinois, is the regional franchise owner for the northern part of the state and is affiliated with Denver-based RE/MAX International, Inc., which has nearly 44,000 sales associates operating from more than 2,700 offices throughout the Western Hemisphere, Europe, Israel and southern Africa.

In 1995 RE/MAX became the first international real estate franchise organization to create a World Wide Web site where information and photographs of listed property can be accessed electronically. In 1994 RE/MAX launched the RE/MAX Satellite Network, which currently provides six hours a day of programming on a variety of topics, including professional education, technology training, conferences and industry news.

"Because RE/MAX attracts so many top agents, home buyers and sellers can be confident that the service they get will reflect the highest level of professionalism," Hegner said. At the heart of its ability to attract top real estate professionals is the basic RE/MAX concept of maximum commissions. RE/MAX sales associates retain the highest possible percentage of commissions earned, directly control their personal marketing expense and share office overhead and management fees.

Those interested in becoming a RE/MAX broker/owner can call Kevin Williams at (815)943-7971 or 1(800)892-6196 for more information.

Ducks Unlimited goes on-line PERSONNELS

Ducks Unlimited, Inc., the world's largest non-profit wetlands and waterfowl conservation organization, has launched a Web site that can be found on the Internet at <http://www.duck.org>.

"Establishing a Web site on the Internet provides Ducks Unlimited with a medium that reaches more than 30 million people worldwide," said Chris Dorsey, director of publishing and communications at Ducks Unlimited. "This also will help us market the more than 5,000 fundraising events that we annually hold throughout America."

"The Internet will complement the weekly outdoor television show we're introducing on The Nashville Network next July, as well as two radio shows that will begin broadcasting nationwide next January and February," said Matthew B. Connolly, Jr., executive vice president. Together with its 600,000 circulation magazine, electronic, and other print news media, Ducks Unlimited expects to reach 50 million potential contributors and members across the U.S. who listen to talk radio.

"Our goal is to increase public awareness of, and support for, wetlands and waterfowl conservation," said Connolly. "To achieve this, our Web site features news and information on habitat conservation initiatives, scientific achievements, and membership activities. Visitors also can try to 'Stump the Swamp Doctor' as well as pose questions to our biologists and engineers."

With more than 900,000 contributors, Ducks Unlimited has raised more than $1 billion to conserve nearly 8 million acres of habitat used by waterfowl and more than 600 species of other wildlife. Ducks Unlimited will celebrate its 60th anniversary in 1997.

Cutting fat

there is an established trend. Regardless, your goal is to reduce fixed expenses as a percentage of sales. It doesn't matter if sales are up or down, reducing expenses as a percentage will strengthen your financial position.

Be careful where you cut

While there are no sacred cows you should protect when eliminating waste, there are some areas where you need to observe caution. Advertising and promotion budgets deserve careful examination. You should try to trim waste, but don't cut here just for the savings.

Use care when reducing labor costs. You must keep customer service as a high level to be competitive.

Finally, never delay in paying income and withholding taxes. Some creditors can be hard to deal with, but the IRA can lock your front door.

The best possible position to work from is one where you don't allow fat to accumulate in the first place. To ensure success you must make a commitment. Cut the fat and get more competitive.

Warren win over Patriots is a Kelter special

The best way to describe Warren High's 43-41 win over Stevenson in a North Suburban Conference girls basketball clash is to say the Blue Devils survived.

The 32-minutes of basketball was a hard-fought struggle for both teams, not decided for 31:59 as Stevenson's Amy Chanees missed two free throws with on second left and a shot at even more basketball this wintry Thursday in Lincolnshire.

The difference in the game was Tiffany Kelter. The Warren soph guard had to watch some of the game from the bench due to fouls, but points, rebounds, assists, steals, you name it, Kelter contributed.

"She carried us today. We could not get any points underneath the basket and were doing things we had not done the last few games. Kelter had an all-around game. She really sparked us tonight. She does everything. She jumps very well for her size," Warren coach Bruce Campbell said.

Kelter, 5-foot, 9 inches, had 16 points, 6 assists, 6 steals and 7 rebounds. Warren got 8 points from the other guard spot from Amy Van Camp and 6 points and 5 assists from Nicole Thompson.

Kelter was doing the damage against one of the better defenders for Stevenson, frosh Tiffany DeClark. "Rebounding was the problem all night. The guards had to step it up. I knew DeClark is a good defensive player," Kelter said.

Warren overcame the enemy wearing blue and gold as the Blue Devils committed 33 turnovers.

"We turned the ball over way too many times and we did not get a lot of rebound shots," Campbell said.

Steffi Sulentic gave Warren a scare with a three-pointer which almost capped off a comeback to erase an eight-point deficit. The Pats executed a play perfectly after a time-out. Sulentic scored 10 points. She had victimized Warren earlier with the trey, for a one-point lead late in the third period.

Warren, off a Kelter basket from a Van Camp assist, gained a three-point lead after three. A three-point play by Kelter with 4:48 left gave the visitors a 40-32 lead. But that would be the last field goal for Warren, as the final points were tallied on two Carrie Schneider free throws and one by Van Camp with 34 seconds left.

"We were lucky to get out of here with a win," Campbell, whose team gained its 12th win in 15 tries, said.

As for Stevenson, it is investing in the future.

"It will come with experience," SHS coach Frank Mattucci said. "We do not have the luxury of playing a soft schedule. We are capable of playing so much better."

"We did a great job all week working against the zone. We have come close, but close only counts in horseshoes and handgrinaides. Potential is as phony as a $3 bill," Mattucci said.

He praised the play of senior Chanees, for the courage to take the final shot when no one else would.

"The five girls on the floor must play up to their capabilities. There are no superstars and they know it," Mattucci said.

Although still looking for the fifth win in early January, playing state-ranked competition could make the defending state champs a wildcard in the Libertyville sectional. Seeds were announced Wednesday. Warren was expecting a top eight spot and a home game, with the defending state champs ready to sneak up and possibly gain a mid to low section seed, nine through 12.

Skyhawks outlast Wauconda

The bounces went Johnsburg's way as the Skyhawks capitalized on Wauconda's ill luck in winning a Northwest Suburban Conference boys basketball test.

Johnsburg prevailed 63-55 to gain a tie for second place in the league race. Wauconda is still snake-bitten in league games with six losses.

"It was a nip-and-tuck game for three and one-half quarters. But we got behind and had to force shots that led to easy baskets," Wauconda coach Don Pieper said.

A key sequence capped off a 45-point fourth quarter.

"The big play was we missed an open lay-up and the ball tipped around to Wauconda's John Lindsey, who missed an open layup. We got the rebound and got fouled. Bruce Carpenter missed the first, but got another try when Wauconda was called for a lane violation. He made the next two," Johnsburg coach Ed Sennett described.

Johnsburg was led by 14 points from Jeremy Butler and Tait Sennett. The Skyhawks outshot Wauconda from the three-point area 7-3. Bob Dobbartin led the way with four treys for Johnsburg as he gave the winners their third 14-point scorer.

"We shot the ball decently, about 40 percent. Usually we are about 32-33 percent. Quite a few people did a lot of things well. We shot 50 percent for the first quarter, and you look pretty good when you do that. We can run the floor well, pass well and get the ball to the open man, but sometimes the shots don't drop," Sennett said.

The coach was pleased with his team's defense except against the Bulldogs' leading scorer, Lindsey. He scored 28 points and Jeff Gertz had 18 for the visitors.

Wildcats hope patience lesson sinks in for NSC tests

The game was played in Libertyville High's gym, but it was Lake Forest which was giving the lessons in a North Suburban Conference clash.

The Scouts had to work overtime, but pulled out a 67-66 win. The defeat dropped the Wildcats to a first-place tie with Warren in the North Suburban Conference at 5-1.

Libertyville is at Zion-Benton (3-3 NSC) Jan. 17.

"It was a close game, a well-fought game, but they showed patience and poise with their offense - that is where we want to be. For the whole game, I was impressed with their offense and how they did a nice job passing the ball and waiting for the open shot. Now we know what we need to do," LHS coach Max Sanders said.

J.R. Jurecko was a force the Scouts simply could not stop. He had 22 points and 16 rebounds, following a 14-point effort in a 64-56 Libertyville win over rival Mundelein.

"That was the best weekend he has had in his high school career. We should have gotten him the ball more times on one-and-one situations," Sanders said.

Libertyville is 10-5 overall and looked sluggish at times against the Eric Levernier-led Mustangs. "We are still not nearly as good as we will be. We got off to a strong start, but we are in a mid-season lull. But it is better to have it now than in February.

Lake Forest struck first in the overtime session after Brian Hamlett had missed a jumper for a chance to win it in regulation. "That made it a two-possession," he said. Another chance came when Neil Mahoney missed two free throws.

Sanders stressed that the two were not the only ones to make mistakes Saturday and contributed key plays. Mahoney's steal led to a basket by Luke McKnight (19 points, 21 against Mundelein).

Lake Forest's main force under the boards, Tyler Smith, fouled out, but the rest of the team rose to the occasion. Adam Galloway picked up the slack, with a 22-point effort including the final basket of regulation.

Senior forward Tim Beshel engineered a LHS comeback with some long-range three-point baskets, the last coming with 23 seconds left in overtime. Lake Forest scored the next four points and the two teams exchanged baskets.

Against Mundelein, a 22-point second quarter helped wake up the Wildcats. The Mustangs closed the gap to within five points in the final two minutes.

Levernier had 12 for Mundelein, which suffered a one-point loss to Stevenson on Saturday. McKnight won the battle of the three-point shooters 5-2.

Ramlow expands his role, Bulldogs' lead grows

Jeff Ramlow's main assets he brings to the Grant High basketball team are usually rebounding and assists.

In a game which could go a long way to determine Grant as the team to beat in the Northwest Suburban Conference, Ramlow added scoring points to his resume with a 15-point effort in a 58-44 win over Grayslake.

Dave Fries led the effort with 16 points, 12 coming in the second half, as Grant pulled away.

"Whoever gets the rebounds usually wins. My strengths have been rebounding and assists. I missed a few lay-ups, but this is a real big win for a three-game lead," Ramlow, a 6-foot, 2-inch senior, said.

The Bulldogs had the advantage of playing just three days earlier while the Rams were off for 13 days after the Rockford holiday tournament.

"We had two of the hardest practices," Ramlow, who was a reserve on last year's team, said.

"If there are three asterisks to this game, it is we played defense, our offense was in spurts and Jeff's scoring. He has scored 17 points this year. He likes those scrappy type of games," Grant coach Tom Maple said.

"We started out doing exactly what we wanted to - played good defense and got off to a quick start. They got aggressive and we missed some easy shots," Rams coach Greg Groth said.

The Rams fell to 2-4 in the league, while Grant is in first place at 5-1. Grayslake hosts Round Lake while Grant is at Johnsburg Jan. 17.

The Rams led 6-0 as Aaron Clark led the offense early on. But those close-in shots became harder for the visitors as the game wore on. The Rams tried to rally with aggressive defense, but it was too late.

Clark was the high scorer for the game with 18 points as the 6-3 senior led the Rams (6-8 overall). He also contributed in rebounds. "I thought he did a great job with rebounding," Groth said.

Grant fought to a 10-7 lead after one and the Rams were still keeping close with a four-point deficit in the second quarter after a Dan Domutz hoop.

Grant, up by six at halftime despite a lack of perimeter baskets, scored 6 straight points after the Rams cut the lead to four at the outside of the third period. Chuck Bosworth (9 points), Ramlow and Fries led the way to a 10-point Grant lead which the home team was able to maintain. The largest lead grew to was 15 with 3:15 left after a lay-up basket by Ramlow.

Warren grabs share of NSC lead with inside-out attack

Folks in Chuck Breuscher's neighborhood are used to the scene.

For years, the Warren High basketball player worked on his three-point shot. For hours, he would stand behind the arc painted in his driveway and refine his technique. The effort has paid dividends for Warren, who surged into a tie for first place with a 48-44 win over Lake Forest and a 70-59 North Suburban Conference win over North Chicago.

Breuscher scored a three-pointer against the tough Lake Forest defense, then made four of his team's five threes, including two in the fourth quarter, against North Chicago.

Warren improved to 10-4 with its double-win weekend. Warren hosts Antioch (2-3 NSC) in a battle between rivals at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 17. Highland Park visits on Jan. 18.

"The guys were looking for me and I was wide open. I just practice the threes- something I have been doing all my life," Breuscher, a junior, said.

"He made some bad decisions at times, but he was a big part in the 20-4 run that won the game," Warren coach Chuck Ramsey said.

Another big factor in the Saturday win over North Chicago was James Williams. He had 13 points and his driving lay-ups kept the Warhawks at bay while leading scorer Luke Moo was in foul trouble. Moo finished with 14 points, 15 rebounds and 5 assists.

"We played sluggish in the beginning, but we picked up the defense. Each conference game is important. We have a lot of confidence now," Williams said.

The two foes gave Warren (10-4, 5-1 NSC) several different looks - from the inside play of Tyler Smith of Lake Forest (27 of his team's 44 points) to the perimeter play of North Chicago's Terrell Garrett (five three-pointers and 22 points).

"We did a better job of passing the ball," Ramsey said of a 20-4 fourth period run which decided the game for Warren.

The Blue Devils, despite a trapping defense by North Chicago, only had 11 turnovers. Moo led Warren to a huge 37-20 lead in rebounding.

The first half appeared to be foul-plagued as Warren led by eight points off a Breuscher trey from a Chad Newhouse assist. The Warren lead reached 10 points on Newhouse free throws and a fast break hoop. Warren led 37-26 at intermission.

The Warhawks cut the lead to six points in the middle of the third period. The comeback reached its peak with a 50-49 deficit in the fourth quarter. But Warren responded. Breuscher hit his first trey since the first quarter and North Chicago was held to one field goal until the final 30 seconds.

"We played well in tight games, but we still have a lot of things to improve on," Ramsey said.

Against Lake Forest, a 20-15 second quarter spurt sparked the Devils in a defensive-minded game. Williams had 14 points and senior forward Moo had 13 points.

Smith played well on both ends of the floor, holding Mark Gustavson, who would lift Lake Forest (4-2 NSC) in overtime against Libertyville the next night, scoreless and scored 27 to lead the way.

ACHS boys gain .500 mark in North Suburban race

A 6-foot, 3-inch forward lining up on the wing for a game tying three-point basket is usually not a high percentage shot.

But then again, the Saturday clash was not usual by any means as Antioch and Zion-Benton went into overtime before the Zee-Bees prevailed 69-68.

Mike Nielsen finished with 17 points and seven rebounds.

"We knew Chris Groth would be heavily guarded and we snuck Mike to the left side. Mike said in the huddle he could make the shot. I said this would be his only chance. He shot it at a 45 degree angle," ACHS coach Jeff Dresser said.

The entertaining game came after a 66-62 win over North Chicago as the Sequoits evened their North Suburban record at 3-3.

"I hope this gives us confidence. We played pretty decent, consistent basketball for eight quarters," Dresser said of the weekend's effort.

Nielsen's heroics knotted the game at 54-54 after 32 minutes. Antioch had trailed by as many as 13 points in the second half.

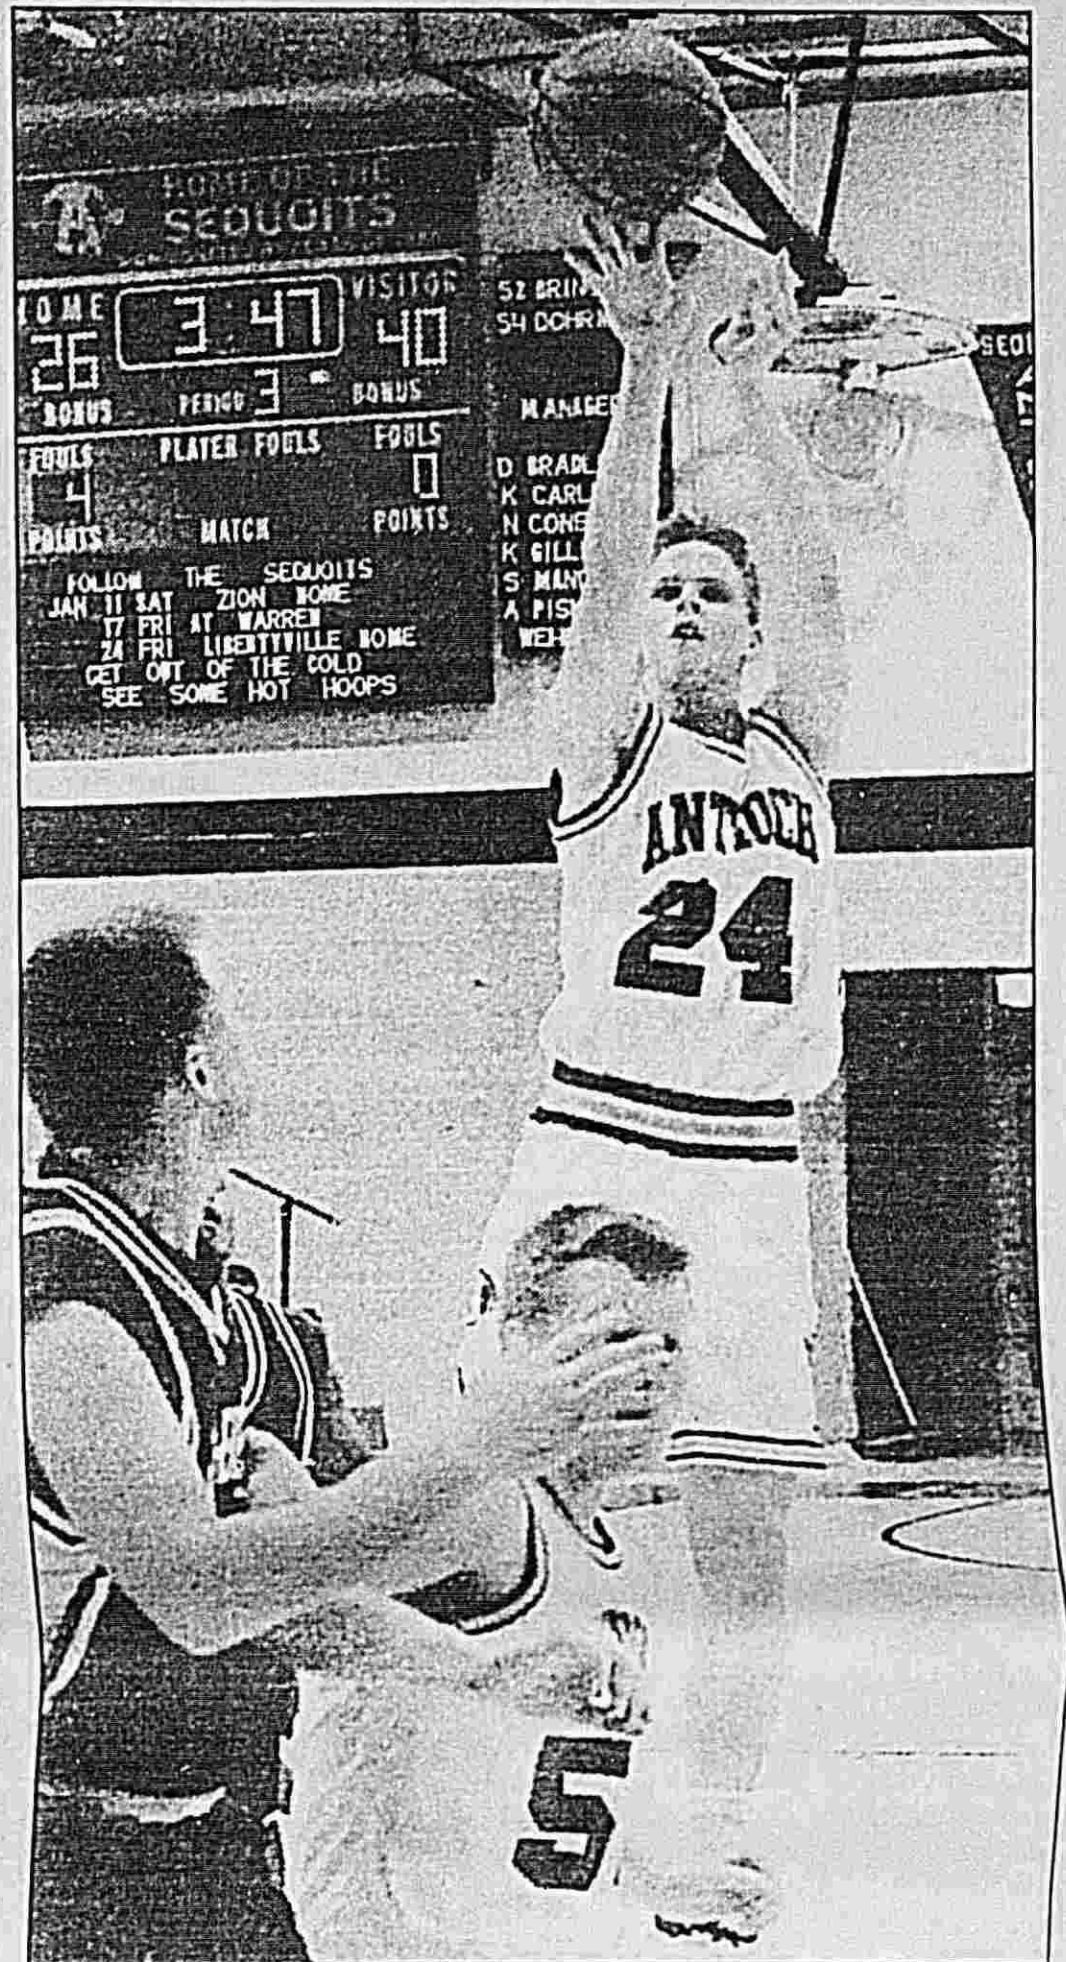

Zion scored the first five points in the overtime. ACHS tried to rally, but the Zee-Bees held on. Quiandre Moore was the force the Sequoits could not control, as the Zion player led the way with 31 points.

Antioch is at league co-leader Warren Jan. 17.

Groth led the Sequoits with 30 points as he made 4 three-pointers against North Chicago. Groth and Kevin Chudd were a combined 10-of-10 from the free-throw line.

"At the end of the game, we want to get the ball to Kevin or Chris," Dresser said of the standard procedure.

ACHS withstood a 29-point fourth quarter effort by the Warhawks to gain a .500 record.

Rams wrestlers experience Fox Valley preview

Grayslake High's young varsity wrestlers will have a chance to see what the future holds in terms of conference competition.

The Rams are at Dundee-Crown Jan. 18, facing Oak Park River Forest and Lane Tech. The Chargers will become more frequent foes when Grayslake joins the Fox Valley Conference next year.

"We have never beaten them in eight times - it is about time to change that," Rams coach Erick Skoog said. "They are strong in the middle weights and 189 pounds. They have some tough, older wrestlers but we have some tough, younger wrestlers," Skoog said.

Youth prevailed at the Jacobs Bad-Mark tourney as Grayslake won with 234 points. The tourney puts a premium on pins. The Rams had seven individual champions, three freshmen.

Eric Peterson won at 103, Mark Stewart at 112, Vince Chebny at 125, Jason Cherwa at 130, Vince Corra at 140, Andy Hamlett at 145 and Wes Anderson at 189.

"This is the most champions we have ever had there. Last year we won, but with a lot of place winners. We worked all week on different pin combinations. Our wrestlers have a huge wealth of knowledge of pins with six to eight moves," Skoog said.

Anderson won his third varsity tourney title this year at 189 pounds. The sophomore increased his record to 26-2.

The Jacobs tourney featured five bouts for each wrestler, so conditioning was at a premium.

The Rams earned a close 34-30 Northwest Suburban Conference win over Round Lake on Friday. Chenby's win at 125 with a 10-6 decision over Juan Rico turned the tide in the Rams' favor. Dale Bowser earned a pin at 160 and Anderson secured the third league win.

The Rams have been succeeding without some regulars. Luke Day at 135 is out for the season due to a stomach illness and others have been out due to missing weight cut-offs or family obligations. "That is tough because you are asking a junior varsity wrestler to step up," Skoog said.

The Rams are at Marian Central Jan. 21.

While the Rams were winning at Jacobs, Stevenson gained the title with 160 points at Cary-Grove and beat Zion-Benton 54-10 in a North Suburban Conference match.

SHS champions were Adam Lipitz at 119 and Sebastian Sanchez at 125 in back-to-back fashion and Camilo Rodriguez at 135; R.J. Cohen at 152.

Aaron Cohen was runner-up at 145.

Gaining third place were: Aaron Wahl at 160; Jared Reis at heavy-weight; Dan Moons at 112; Nick DeMarco at 130; soph Ketan Parikh at 140; Peter Schraufnagel at 171 and Aaron Rubin at 189 gained fourths.

"It was an outstanding team effort," coach Lino Martinez said.

Carmel girls plan to test WHS depth; Rams to be force

Carmel High girls basketball coach Larry Whittier would like to see field goal shooting continue on the pace it did as the Corsairs wrapped up an easy girls basketball non-conference win over Highland Park.

To do so in their next assignment, the Corsairs will have to overcome one of the area's toughest defenses in Wauconda. The two square off in non-conference play Jan. 16. Wauconda then hosts Grayslake at 1 p.m. in a Northwest Suburban Conference clash Jan. 18.

"Our defense was the difference," Wauconda coach Gary Rajkowski said of a 47-37 win over Woodlands Academy.

Corey Henningfeld had 11 points and Kelly Sena 10 as the Bulldogs improved to 12-2. Chrissy Schulze contributed 8 points, including a three-point basket.

"Our offense had a difficult time. Defensively, we tried to pressure them at midcourt and keep them far away from the basket," Rajkowski said.

Wauconda, the NWSC leaders, led 14-4 early on and never looked back. Woodlands was held to single digits in each quarter.

Lindsey Johnson, Paula Grant, Brittany Barth and Jean Jones were cited for their defensive efforts.

Carmel improved to 5-9 with a 67-9 win over Highland Park. The Corsairs had one of their better games on offense against a team that was looking for its second win.

Tina Thul scored 18 points to lead the home team.

"It was nice. We did not know what to expect because of the lay-off. It was one of our better shooting efforts of the year. One thing we need to work on for the second half is consistency. Our goal was to have five turnovers or less each quarter and we met that," Whittier said.

The Corsairs used their height advantage for rebounds which led to fast-break baskets.

Whittier said the Corsairs got strong efforts from Jill Denoma (6 points), and Vicki Tekampe (9 points).

Wauconda will still be without Robyn Porten (broken wrist) and leading scorer Kelly Ryberg (ankle).

Carmel battles Fenwick in a make-up game Jan. 20 at home. That is one of six games in the nest 15 against state-ranked teams.

Grayslake has been off since a win over Marian Central at post-holiday break as a game at Grant was postponed due to weather.

Freshmen Jenny Wessel, Carrie Hovik and Morgen Paul and soph Laura Mendrella lead the Rams, 4-2 in the NWSC.

"I have been impressed with Grayslake. As the season goes on, they will give more and more people trouble," Rajkowski said.

Other clashes Jan. 18 in girls basketball feature Warren at Antioch at 2:30 p.m.; North Suburban Conference leader Libertyville at Zion-Benton at 2:30 p.m.; Mundelein at Lake Forest at 2:30 p.m.; Dundee-Crown at Lake Zurich at 7 p.m. in Fox Valley Conference play.

CHS takes rebounding lesson

Relying on its perimeter shooting for most of its points, Carmel learned the importance of rebounding in an East Suburban Catholic Conference loss to Notre Dame.

Carmel fell 57-45 despite seven three-point baskets. Notre Dame pulled away in the fourth period to finish with a 22-16 edge and end the Corsairs' modest two-game win streak.

"We did not have much balance of our offense. We did not get many points from the inside players and gave up 19 offensive rebounds. That was the difference in the game," Carmel coach Ben Berg said.

Eagles soar over LZ with three-pointers

For 13 games, Lake Zurich generally had the better of it when it came to three-point shooting.

The Bears met their match from outside the arc in a contingent from Jacobs. The Golden Eagles dropped the Bears to a tie for second place in the Fox Valley Conference with a 64-54 loss.

"It was their shooting percentage. They are the only team to have played us that way. That caused us some match-up problems, but we knew that going in that is what they would do," Lake Zurich coach John Zarr said.

The home team fell behind by eight points by halftime, and that hill proved too steep to overcome.

"We picked up the tempo in the second half," Zarr said.

Jacobs matched the Bears (9-5 overall, 4-2 FVC) three-pointer for three-pointer (4-4) and had an adequate inside game. Seniors Mark Paulauskis and Scott Johnson led the visitors with 18 points each as Jacobs improved to 8-7 overall, 5-1 FVC.

John Zitko had all four treys for Lake Zurich as he scored 16 points. Thor Solvorson tried to stem the tide and finished with 17. "We found Thor more and John shot the ball better in the second half," Zarr said.

The Bears hit the road for two FVC games, looking to do what Jacobs has done away from home - win. The Bears are at Cary-Grove Jan. 17 and Dundee-Crown Jan. 18.

LHS wrestlers in stride; Warren, LZ leaders improve

Teammates call the three Libertyville High wrestlers who have dominated the middle weights "The Three Amigos."

Sam Valenti at 130 pounds, Mike Padula at 135 and Dan Cysewski at 140 gained three more wins as did the Wildcats in a round robin meet at Round Lake.

How good are the three? Combined, they have 78 wins and 30 pins in 14 dual matches. Valenti, a senior, is 20-3 with 9 pins; Padula is 20-2 with 10 pins and Cysewski is 18-0 with 11 pins.

"We had a lot of good matches today. Dan had two real quick pins and Padula had a good day - he really drilled two guys and several guys went 2-1," LHS coach Dale Eggert said.

Libertyville improved to 13-1 with a 49-9 win over Warren; 54-19 over Lake Zurich and 48-15 over Barrington.

Ted Chen had an unbeaten day at 145, winning two matches. Brian Martin is 14-6 at 160 after a two win day; soph Chad Blomgren had a win and a decision at 171; Ben Peterson had two wins at 189 to go over .500.

"The team is looking pretty good. We had some close battles against tough competition," Eggert said.

Lake Zurich's Zach Edmonds continued his unbeaten string with three wins at 152 pounds. Edmonds went to several off-season camps, including the University of Iowa's "intense" camp, to tune up for a senior year effort for a state finish. Karl Kindler was 3-0 for the Bears at 171.

"Both lift weights before school and stay after practice," Lake Zurich coach Dan Stickler said.

Warren's highlight was a comeback for a 36-32 win over Round Lake.

Wins by Kevin Szempruch and Neil Pikulski capped the effort. Pikulski had a 3-0 day, winning over Justin Truetelaar of Libertyville by pin and a Buffalo Grove wrestler in otherwise lopsided losses.

"I expect our seniors to do well - it was a good team effort. We had a lot of kids who saved points by not losing by a pin," Warren coach Mark Tiffany said.

Warren is 4-5 in duals before competing at Lake Zurich Jan. 18. The Bears battle Cary-Grove in a Fox Valley Conference clash Jan. 17.

Pikulski was ill at the season-opening meet at Barrington and did not regain full strength until just before the Wheeling tourney, where he won his weight class. "I thought Treutelaar would be the toughest match of the day but I just stacked him," he said.

For Round Lake, the loss to Warren was the second close loss in as many days. The Panthers were 34-30 by Grayslake. Chris Bell, a 145 pounder, leads the Panthers.

"We had an opportunity against Grayslake, but their young wrestlers showed more poise than ours did," Round Lake coach Bob Curran said. "We have not had any consistent wrestlers."

Grant looks to regain intensity

The physical nature of basketball is beginning to take its toll on what was once a promising season for Grant High's girls basketball team.

McHenry outmuscled Grant 39-26 in a non-conference game Monday. Grant was held to seven points in the first 16 minutes.

"We did not play hard at all. We did not communicate. It is very disappointing to see talented individuals not able to put it together as a team," Grant coach Stephanie Romic said.

Grant star Michelle Tennyson was held to 13 points.

Romic said she could tell before the game at McHenry that the Bulldogs may be in for a long night. Jamie Myers scored 6 points.

The closest the Bulldogs came in the second half was seven points down after three quarters.

Romic said preparation, talk and execution should be the formula for success. "Talking about it afterward is too late - it is time to move on to the next game," Romic said.

"We had plenty of shots - we just did not make them," Romic said.

The Warriors gained their sixth win of the year by double teaming Tennyson and guard Stacie Morley at key points. Morley was held to two points.

The loss was the second in the last three games for Grant and could impact the seeding for the Libertyville sectional complex. The Bulldogs (10-6 overall) still cling to second-place in the NWSC. They host Marian Central Jan. 23 before another clash with league leader Wauconda Jan. 28 away.

Grant provides spark to beat Skyhawks

Jim Gentile made the most of one of his chances to contribute a varsity wrestler a successful one, and that effort proved to be the difference between victory and defeat for Grant.

He won the 171 pound bout in 5:09 by pin against Johnsburg as the Bulldogs mounted a rally for a 31-25 Northwest Suburban Conference win.

"He came through in a pressure situation," Grant coach Dave Kapraun said.

Gentile used a move that had been working well in practice to win the match.

Adam Butler then won at 189 pounds over Larry Bolda 16-4 to secure the key league win.

Frosh Robert Reyes won at 130 pounds, edging Randy Vendenga 6-4. "He had a close match. He has unbelievable presence for a freshman," Kapraun said.

Tony Nelson gained a win for Grant at 112 and Anthony Johnson won at 125.

For Antioch, a weekend of non-conference bouts had split results with a loss to Lincolnway and a win over Shepard.

Joe Brandimore continues as one of the Sequoits' leaders. He was 4-0 since Christmas break, including one of ACHS' three wins against Lincolnway.

Jeff Ultes, who suffered his first loss last week at 171 pounds won over Lincolnway by fall. Heavyweight Justin Tripplett earned a 2-1 win.

Ryan Hlinak at 103 pounds won by a technical fall over Shepard.

"Between three of them - Hlinak, Ultes and Brandimore have about five losses between them. They are a pretty good trio," ACHS coach Ted Sieskowski said.

Tripplett is one of several Sequoits still battling illnesses.

The Sequoits' defending North Suburban Conference champ at 135 pounds, Mike Burian, is graduating early. The highlight of his final season was a second place finish at Glenbrook South.

"He has been a great addition to the team the last few years. This is more of a rebuilding year for us," the coach said.

ACHS battles at Zion-Benton Jan. 17.

At Sycamore, Grant gained a fourth place finish with 156 points on Saturday.

Nelson and Jim Coniglio gained second-place finishes. Eric Wulf and Butler were third. Joe Michiewicz at 103 pounds and Reyes gained fifth places. Other finishes were Brad Helmiski in sixth at 160 pounds and Adam Cashmore at heavyweight.

"It was a good team effort," Kapraun said.

Grant (13-3 overall duals) hosts Marian Central Jan. 17, taking its NWSC lead into the battle. "Marian tied Johnsburg, so we are not looking past them," Kapraun said.

Williams is steady force

Kelan Williams continues to have steady performances and the Lancers started the league season on the right foot.

Williams, a sophomore from Waukegan, led the College of Lake County to a 98-72 win over Oakton in the Skyway Conference opener.

He had 28 points.

Doug Rettig had 18 points and had 9 rebounds for the Lancers.

Addam Becker led the Lancers with 21 points on the strength of four three-point field goals in a 117-89 loss to Kishwaukee.

Williams had 17 points and one trey. Eric Campbell had 12 points and a trey. CLC trailed 65-47 at halftime.

"We did not step to the ball when receiving a pass and they picked off some passes. They shot 61 percent from the field inside the three-point range. We were not strong on the boards and lost the ball inside too many times," CLC coach Terry Ryan said.

LHS girls centers of attention in North Suburban race

Depth has proved to be an important ally to Libertyville High's girls basketball team as it continued to lead the North Suburban Conference.

The Wildcats received 24 points from the center position and controlled Mundelein with intense defense in cruising to a 57-25 North Suburban Conference win. With Lake Forest's 66-58 overtime loss to Warren Saturday, the win extended the Wildcats' lead.

Kerrigan scored 8 points as Libertyville while Sears had 16.

"Kerrigan was the star of the game," Wildcats coach Tom Murphy said.

Sears, who is heading to Northwestern next year on scholarship, appreciates Kerrigan's tests in practice.

"The past three or four practices, she has played unbelievable. It definitely does help me. It is tough to get around her," Sears said.

Sears is 6-foot, 2-inches and Kerrigan, a junior, is 5-11.

The Wildcats, led by the efforts on defense of sophomore guard Tricia Thomas, put the clamps on defense down on MHS after the home team battled to a 13-10 deficit after one quarter. Thomas also contributed on the offensive end, with 15 points. Marsha Letto, Mundelein's leading scorer, was held to five points.

"We had an intense practice yesterday because we knew Mundelein would be ready to play," Sears said.

"They are just so physical and so big. In the second quarter, they found out who our shooters are. We proved for one quarter, we can play with one of the best teams in the state. Our girls need to believe in themselves," MHS coach Tom Kuhn said.

MHS slipped to 7-7, 1-4 NSC. Libertyville, which squared off against Lake Forest on Tuesday, improved to 9-6 overall, 5-0 NSC.

"We played well and our bench came through and played hard," Murphy said.

In non-conference play on Saturday, St. Ignatius turned back Stevenson 52-44. Amy Chaness and Katie Fitzgerald had nine points each for the Pats (4-12). A 15-2 second quarter deficit could not be overcome by the Patriots.

WTHS starts head football coach search; Hughes out

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

A new era is beginning in Lake County football.

Reggie Hughes will not be back as head football coach at Warren Township High School, ending a 12-year reign. The board of education voted to declare the head football coaching job open for 1997, inviting candidates to apply.

The board voted 5-1 to take the action. The lone vote against the recommendation from the administration came from board member Don Fontana.

"I disagree with the recommendation," he said.

With the decision to opt for a new head coach now behind them, WTHS may expand the issue to other coaching positions.

"We need to consider minimum standards for coaches," Dr. Russ Schneider, board president, said.

The scope of those standards is yet to be determined.

"It would be up to the board to determine if we seek a consultant to help us determine those standards," Schneider said.

"The intent of the board is to solicit for candidates," Dr.

Calvin Leader, superintendent, said.

Leader pointed out that coaches and other extra-curricular personnel work on one-year contracts. The board had until the end of April to make up its mind, but wanted to begin the search earlier.

"Reggie is a fine man. We appreciate the work he has done in 12 years - there was a lot of dedication," Leader said.

The position would be open to assistants as well as outside the school employment candidates.

Critics in the stands and administration felt Hughes' strategies had been too predictable. Assistant coaches were reportedly miffed when Hughes asked for further commitments from them in terms of being full-time personnel. Hughes outlined a program of a "get tough" off-season program for players.

Players would workout for a prescribed amount of time under the direction of football coaches. Apparently, there was not enough support for that approach.

During an earlier interview, Hughes pointed to the dozens of players who went on to play collegiate football as one of his main success stories.

"We are not looking for a great athlete. A great athlete but a poor citizen does not pay any dividends on or off the football field. My philosophy is always to have good citizens. Ninety percent of the things we do not have anything to do with x's and o's," Hughes said at the close of last season.

Hughes said coaching today has many interests to compete with for an athlete's attention. Hughes has coached the Blue Devils for 12 years, with playoff teams in 1986, 1991, 1992 and 1994. The 1991 team was the last to win the North Suburban Conference for Warren. Hughes had a 62-52 overall record at WTHS. He previously served as an assistant to Mike Kunkle and has more than 20 years of experience at the Gurnee high school.

With Tuesday's board decision, he will not get a chance to see if his new strategy would work.

He considered retiring after a 3-6 record last year, but opted to stay on.

The recommendation to declare the position vacant, which had to be done before the job posting, was made by principal Philip Roffman and athletic director Len Chimino.

Panthers downed by Canes

Something seemed out of sync for Round Lake the minute the bus left for a Northwest Suburban Conference game at Marian Central.

"The biggest factor is we did not practice the night before because of the weather. We came out flat and did not play up to our potential," Round Lake coach Ron Sapochak said.

The 63-50 loss to Marian Central and a loss by Grayslake to Grant means the loser of the Round Lake at Grayslake clash Jan. 17 will find a tough road to hoe to get back into the league race.

"If we are to have any chance for the conference title, we can't afford to lose too many more games," Sapochak said.

Grant leads the league at 5-1. Marian Central, which is at Wauconda Jan. 17, is 4-2, followed by the Panthers at 3-3 and the 2-4 Rams.

Marian Central led 14-6 after one before the Panthers could regroup on offense.

Tom Wicinski led the Panthers (8-8 overall) with 13 points. Troy Robinson, a junior forward, had 10 and Chuck Conti had 9.

"The second quarter we had the lead for a while, but we were always a step behind Marian all night," Sapochak said.

The Hurricanes (9-4 overall) had four players in double figures.

When the Panthers play the Rams Friday, the home team will be trying to put the clamps on Wicinski's three-pointers.

They largely did that against Grant, especially in the first half. Aaron Clark has had the hot hand for the Rams, scoring 18 against Grant.

(847) 740-4035How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Dear Search,

I work for a fairly new mid size company whereby I handle the personnel and payroll functions. I recently received a wage garnishment on an employee and never realized how much added work and effort goes into this. While I realize that this is a legal garnishment, I would like to start a new policy informing our employees (in a tactful way) that this is something we choose not to have to deal with in our company. How would you suggest we proceed?
P.K.-Vernon Hills

Dear P.K.,

Wage Garnishments and the laws governing them vary among states. While you have no choice in the matter but to comply with them, there are ways to inform your employees that your company frowns down upon them. There are many important issues besides wage garnishment one is faced with in your position. If your company does not have an employee handbook as yet, I advise one to be carefully constructed, distributed and signed for by all employees. (You may wish to seek legal advice.) This will cover any employee from coming to you with the, "you didn't tell me" syndrome. You may wish to phrase this something to the effect of the following: "Employees of our company are expected to meet their financial obligations. Any wage garnishments placed against an employee incurs additional work and expense to our organization. Thank you for preventing wage garnishments." As always, your employee handbook should clearly protect your company for the future by adding a notation that enables your company to change a policy at its discretion.

Dear Search,

I have been called to serve jury duty for the first time. I am unaware as to how long this will last, but is my employer required to pay me for my time off?
S.F.-Libertyville

Dear S.F.,

Most companies recognize jury duty as a civic obligation. The majority of companies pay their employees the difference between jury duty pay and their own earnings. Same goes for employees in reserve training and the National Guard. As citizens there are certain things we must do for our communities and our country. The majority of companies recognize the "good citizen" participation and support these situations.
